

State Legislature Drafts Supplemental Budget; Prepares to Adjourn

Controversy Over Budget Casts Foreshadow of Special Session Since Court May Sustain Governor

Investigations

Home Relief Administration and Liquor Authority Probe Await Action

By WILLIAM W. TYLER

Albany, N. Y., May 20 (AP)—The Republican Legislature, warned by Governor Lehman that to persist means "a very large deficit," drafted today a several million dollar 1939-1940 supplemental budget and prepared to adjourn.

Republican leaders, who already have announced $1,250,000 in highway appropriations and other cuts in the governor's recommendations will be restored to the $385,000,000 approved budget, repeated promises the state's books "will balance."

The budget controversy casts the foreshadow of a special session, speculation on which heightened after a renewed plea by a majority leader for state help toward easing the upstate local relief-financing burden.

Only two other major matters stood between weary lawmakers and a promised adjournment of the five-month old session before nightfall. Approval was predicted by leaders for both—a strengthening of unemployment insurance administration and a program of state lending to municipalities for slum clearance and low-cost housing.

Partisan differences over finances flared anew with the governor's assertion a substantial deficit would result from restoring "a good part" of the $30,000,000 budget reductions through the supplemental bill or other special measures, unless new revenue is provided.

The threat of a special session lies chiefly in the possibility the courts will sustain the governor's contention that Republican changes in the "form" of his budget by substituting "lump sum" appropriations for itemized recommendations are unconstitutional.

Lawmakers would be relieved by Lehman to revamp the financial plan before July 1, opening of the fiscal year.

Talk of a summer meeting of legislators that developed after rejection of a state-wide two percent sales tax to finance local relief increased with a Senate floor plan for "overburdened" upstate communities by Majority Leader Joe R. Hanley.

"We have got to have relief, and if necessary we will come back here for that purpose," he asserted.

But Lehman, who must stipulate the agenda for any special session, gave Hanley and Republican Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck little encouragement in a subsequent interview. Heck said the governor pointed out the Legislature has the right to remain in session as long as it desires to solve the local relief-financing problem.

Action on Investigations

Albany, N. Y., May 20 (AP)—Senate-approved resolutions calling for investigations of the state liquor authority and "rising costs" of home relief administration awaited eleven hour action today of New York's Assembly.

The measures, combined with two other resolutions authorizing surveys to determine best methods to stamp out social diseases and extend home rule to first class villages, would carry appropriations totaling $120,000.

The resolution for investigation of relief costs, pushed through the Senate yesterday with three other measures to create legislative investigation committees, asserts New York's relief bill "is the highest of any state in the nation."

Contending "intricate red tape" has caused "unnecessary relief and hardships," the measure carries a $65,000 appropriation to finance an inquiry by a committee of five assemblymen and five senators.

"Widespread criticism" of activities of the state liquor authority, its officers and personnel, is cited in another investigation resolution which calls for a seven-member committee and a $15,000 appropriation.

The proposed study of home rule needs of the state's 54 first class villages, preliminary to enactment of legislation carrying out a new constitutional amendment, provides for a $15,000 investigation by eight legislators.

The resolution to study and recommend measures to combat social diseases calls for a $25,000 appropriation and creation of an 11-member committee. The measure permits extension of a social disease survey to Denmark and Sweden.

Public Works Will Decide on Removal Of House in Road

Meade Street House Is in Middle of Road; Plan Extensive Program of Street Work

Mayor C. J. Heiselman, Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin and members of the Board of Public Works next Tuesday afternoon will inspect the "house in the middle of the road" on Meade street, at East Chester street, to decide what action shall be taken toward moving the house back off the street, which is being improved and rebuilt as a WPA project.

The board at its regular monthly meeting Friday afternoon also discussed the street reconstruction program now underway in the city. With Greenkill avenue, Cedar street, Abel street and Sterling street being rebuilt, the board plans to start reconstruction work shortly on Hurley avenue and Lindbergh avenue.

The board is now employing 104 men on street reconstruction work which, with the approximately 600 men employed on WPA projects in the city, is giving work to 704 men with a combined payroll of over $80,000 monthly.

In addition to the street reconstruction program the board planned to commence oiling the unpaved streets today, and decided that at the special meeting next Tuesday it would consider plans for taking care of the brook on Wilbur avenue, between Greenkill avenue and Henry street.

The Kennedy house on Meade street was erected about 80 years ago. Architect Harry Halverson yesterday submitted an estimate of the cost of removing the house to a new foundation. Mr. Halverson in his communication fixed the cost at $400.

As work is now underway on Meade street the board decided to hold the special meeting next Tuesday at which time the board will decide what to do with the house problem. At the same meeting Sanitary Engineer Edward I. McCaffery will submit plans for covering over the brook on Wilbur avenue. If possible this will be made a WPA project with the city and property owners along the brook paying part of the costs of the work.

In discussing the street construction program Mayor Heiselman made it plain that the city was using every piece of road equipment it had. He said he had heard some talk that the city had too much equipment, but when it was considered that plenty of equipment was needed to keep over 700 men at work it was easily seen that the city instead of having too much did not have enough equipment.

Mayor Heiselman called the attention of the board to the fact that the city owned but two power shovels. One was being used on the Clifton avenue sewer project and the other was being used in the stadium project and on the reconstruction of Abel street.

In order to tie up work on Abel street or the stadium, the mayor said that the shovel was used during the day at the stadium and during the night at the Abel street job.

The mayor said that it was only through cooperation between the WPA and the city forces that it was possible to carry on the extensive road building program now underway in the city.

"In order to carry on the program we need every piece of equipment the city owns, and in fact if we did not have it it would be necessary to rent equipment," declared the mayor.

Edward Ford was granted the concession at Forsyth Park for the summer. His bid was $50, while Thomas Long was granted the concession at Hasbrouck Park. His bid was $30.

Bills were read and audited and the board then adjourned.

Mussolini to Talk

Rome, May 20 (AP)—Premier Mussolini, ending a week's tour of the Piedmont region near France, decided to address a mass meeting at Cuneo tonight. He was expected to discuss the international situation in the light of events of the past week. Extensive preparations were made, indicating the address would be a major one. Some quarters thought it likely Mussolini would reply to the French appraisal of the comparatively moderate tone of his speech at Turin last Sunday as evidence that Italy was not ready to go to war to obtain the territorial concessions she demands of France.

Royal Traffic

Toronto, May 20 (Canadian Press)—A Canadian air force biplane and radio may be used to direct traffic here next Monday when the king and queen arrive. Chief Constable D. C. Draper made an hour test of the idea in a flight at 2,000 feet altitude yesterday.

Kidnaping at World's Fair, May Face Police

New York, May 20 (AP)—Police were faced today with what may be a world's fair kidnaping.

Mystery surrounding the disappearance of a 13-year-old girl deepened after an intensive search of the fair grounds near which she was last seen Thursday night in the company of a personable young hobo.

The missing girl, Isla Aylesworth, whose father, Charles Aylesworth, came here from Avalon, Pa., to supervise the American Airlines exhibit, was sought for 24 hours before an alarm was broadcast last night.

The girl's encounter with the hobo was reported by her sister, Jean, 11. The two girls left their lodgings in Elmhurst, Queens, to visit their father at the fair. As they neared the fair grounds, Jean said, they were approached by the stranger and after they had talked with him for a time, Isla sent her sister home.

Jean said the young stranger, whom she described as about 25, blond, medium height and weight, approached them from the direction of the Netherlands pavilion. Police said vagrants and drifters had congregated in that vicinity, outside the fair grounds, for some weeks.

Youth Is Arrested After Girl Falls From Moving Car

Dominic Iacobellis Is Held in $1,000 Bail on Charge of Assault; Girl Is at Hospital

Miss Mary Squires, 15, of 62 Flatbush avenue, is a patient in the Kingston Hospital, and Dominic Iacobellis, 22, of 14 Clifton avenue, is under arrest on a charge of assault in the third degree, as the result of injuries sustained by the girl early this morning in a fall from the running board of Iacobellis's automobile on O'Neil street.

The arrest of Iacobellis followed a telephone call to police headquarters from the Kingston Hospital at 12:42 o'clock this morning that two young men had brought a young girl to the hospital for treatment.

Officers Leonard and Hess were sent to the hospital and brought Iacobellis and Frank Bunce back to police headquarters where they were questioned. According to the police the girl had stepped up on the running board of the auto while it was standing on O'Neil street, just off Broadway, when

Clipper Off on Mail Flight to Europe Starting Transatlantic Air Service

By DEVON FRANCIS

Associated Press Aviation Editor

New York, May 20—A flying officer in a natty blue uniform will stick his fist, thumb upward, out the cockpit window of the world's biggest airplane today, and transatlantic port service between Europe and North America will be under way.

After ten years of planning, the North Atlantic will be spanned by airliners operating on schedule—just as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh predicted it would be back in 1927. The "Yankee Clipper," a four-engined, deep-bellied craft which cruises at 160 miles an hour, will inaugurate the service with 100,000 letters in her hold.

No passengers will be carried on this first trip, on the 12th anniversary of the start of Lindbergh's memorable flight to Paris, nor on four successive trips at weekly intervals. But before July 1 Pan American Airways, owner of the clipper and five of her 41½ sister ships, will offer 24-hour service to London.

By that time the company, the first to institute scheduled flights across the last ocean in the world to be conquered by airliners, will be operating two round trips a week.

Skipper Arthur E. La Porte's gesture from the cockpit window, the signal to helpers on the quay at the Port Washington, L. I., base to cast off, is indicative of the almost casual nature of the flight.

Pan American for weeks has been ready to go. The last of the "survey" flights, on both the so-called "northern" and "southern" routes was completed in 1937. Only the approvals of two government agencies, the civil aeronautics authority and the postoffice department, were necessary. Those were issued yesterday.

With La Porte on the trip to the Azores, Lisbon, Marseilles and Southampton will be the first officer, five junior officers, five radio and engineering officers and two stewards.

As soon as the Bay of Botwood, Newfoundland, clears of ice, flights by way of Foyles, Ireland, will be alternated with those on the route to be followed today.

A leisurely schedule, to be shortened to about 35 hours on the northern route and 24 on the southern, will take the clipper to Horta and Lisbon Sunday, Marseilles Monday and Southampton Tuesday. She is due back here a week from today.

The clipper will fly to Port Washington from Baltimore, her base, this morning. The takeoff for Horta, 2,400 miles away, is set for noon (E. S. T.).

When transatlantic passenger service starts, the clipper will accommodate a maximum of 35 persons.

Congressional Leaders Discuss Compromise Plan To Revise Business Taxes

France Anxious to See Soviet Russia Join Their Lineup

Unusual Unanimity of British Opinion Favoring Tie-Up With Russia Is Reported

(By The Associated Press)

Signs of stress and turmoil intensified in Asia today as in Europe the pressure of the French government and public opinion in England weighed on Britain to bring Soviet Russia into the British-French lineup.

In the Near East, Palestine's aroused Jews worked beneath an outward calm to arrange economic measures in protest against Britain's plan to give Arabs dominance in the Holy Land. Jewish leaders counted on a general policy of non-cooperation to register their dissatisfaction more effectively than open rebellion.

Jebel Druze hill tribes in Syria began a new campaign for independence as dissension grew, apparently fed by the French agreement in principle to re-attach the republic of Hatay (the state of Alexandretta) to Turkey.

In the far east, five Japanese cabinet members reached an agreement on Japan's position in the European situation and were expected shortly to issue a statement explaining the terms of their as yet unannounced decision, the result of three months' discussions.

Reliable sources in London, meanwhile, indicated unusual unanimity of British opinion favoring a tie-up with Russia as the drawn-out negotiations shifted to Paris. There, British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax was to talk with French Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, preparatory to conversations with Ivan Maisky, Russia's delegate to a League of Nations council meeting in Geneva Monday.

Tighten National Defense

Paris, May 20 (AP)—The French cabinet today approved nine new decrees tightening national defense preparations as French diplomatic efforts were bent toward bringing Britain and Soviet Russia nearer a triple entente.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet gave particular emphasis to France's position in working for success of the British-Soviet negotiations during a review of the international situation by the ministers.

The meeting prepared for conversations which Bonnet and Premier Daladier will have later today with Viscount Halifax, British foreign minister, who is to stop in Paris on his way to a League of Nations council session in Geneva.

The new decrees laws, authorize the government to requisition any building in France for military use, set aside colonial raw materials for manufacture of motor oils and gasoline for national defense agencies and regulate working conditions on the nationalized French railways.

Certain problems in the army and navy also are covered by the decrees.

Favor Russian Tie-up

London, May 20 (AP)—Reliable signs today indicated unusual unanimity of British opinion favoring a tie-up with Soviet Russia as negotiations designed to bring Moscow into the French-British front shifted to Paris.

Significantly, only one newspaper, the Daily Express, was cool to quickest possible action, and it conceded that "the public want an alliance."

"Why don't they get on with it?" appeared to be the popular reaction to negotiations which now are more than two months old. On buses, in shops, and on street corners conversation showed that Londoners were anxious for an agreement with Red Russia, whose Communism no longer seemed to cause misgivings.

"The government would be believed to be interpreting the general desire of the country if they rounded off their other signal successes in forming a peace front by coming to an agreement with Russia as well as the further delay as possible," said the Daily Telegraph.

Hopes Are Doomed

Rome, May 20 (AP)—Fascists found cause for satisfaction in Prime Minister Chamberlain's declaration on British-Soviet Russian negotiations which they interpreted as admission that hopes of including Russia in the British front were doomed. They contrasted what they called "negotiations for an alliance which have become a grotesque controversy" with increasing solidarity of the Rome-Berlin axis evidenced by the military alliance to be signed Sunday.

Two Flags Found; One Unidentified

Official Flag of Kingston, One of Strange Design Are Discovered

Two flags were found in the tower record room in the city hall on Friday afternoon. One is the official city flag and the other a flag that no one in the city hall was able to identify.

The unknown flag has a red border surrounding a white field. In the center of the white field are three dark blue perpendicular stripes. The flag is attached to a staff, and if the reader is able to know what the flag is intended to represent Thomas W. Miller, secretary to Mayor Heiselman, would be glad to be informed.

The official city flag was adopted by the Common Council on July 15, 1920. The flag was designed by the late Judge A. T. Clearwater, when he was city historian.

The matter of an official flag for the city was taken up by the judge by the late Mayor Palmer Canfield in 1920, and led to the judge submitting the design which was approved by the council.

The official city flag has three stripes, red, white and blue. Embazoned on the white field of the flag is a golden eagle bearing in its talons a palm branch.

For several years, up until the time the city hall was damaged by fire, the flag was displayed at every meeting of the common council.

The flag found yesterday is the original flag that passed through the city hall fire.

Would 'Run It Out'

Oxford, England, May 20 (AP)—Total abstainers and moderate drinkers would run it out under a challenge issued here at a national fitness meeting. Frank Pakenham, Socialist member of the city council and brother of the Earl of Longford, challenged Oxford's teetotaler Quaker mayor, Henry T. Gillett, to organize a team of eight teetotalers to oppose a team of light limbers in an eight-mile relay race. Both teams would be "regaled after the run by the losing captain, with a beverage of the winners' choosing."

To Have New Home

New York, May 20 (AP)—Tiffany & Co., famous Fifth avenue jewelry house, is going to have a new home. The firm will leave its present location at 37th street and Fifth avenue next year for a new building 20 blocks farther up the avenue at 57th street. The present building, on which the name Tiffany was conspicuously prominent, has been occupied by the jewelry firm since 1905. The store began business in 1837 on lower Broadway.

Said to Involve Reduction of Present 2½ Per Cent Rate on Undistributed Profits to 1½

Spending Program

Pepper Says Senate Will Name New Spending Program if President Doesn't

Washington, May 20 (AP)—A compromise of revising corporate taxes, which advocates said might remove the chief obstacle to adjournment of Congress around July 15, was discussed by legislative leaders today.

It was said reliably to involve reduction of the present 2½ per cent rate on undistributed profits to 1½ per cent.

Retention of the principle of this tax, advocates of the compromise said, would meet President Roosevelt's recent demand that either the controversial levy be allowed to stand or some other impost be devised which would prevent tax avoidance.

Some senators who have kept in close touch with efforts to revise taxes said they were satisfied there would be little administration opposition to readjustment of other corporation levies, provided the present level of federal revenues was maintained.

A group headed by Senator Harrison (D., Miss.) has been working on a schedule which would provide a maximum tax of 18 per cent on corporation income, with allowances to be made for loss carryovers and for revaluation of capital stock. Present levies run from 16½ to 19 per cent, depending on the amount of profits distributed, with preferential treatment for small businesses having earnings of $25,000 or less.

The plan on which the Harrison group has been working calls for repeal of the undistributed profits levy, but there were indications that a compromise which could go through Congress without great controversy might be acceptable.

Spending Program

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) served notice today that he and other administration supporters would take the initiative in starting a new lending-spending program through congress if President Roosevelt did not come forward soon with concrete proposals of his own.

"If the President doesn't start it, we will," said the senator, who has been active in efforts to work out a new program for submission to Mr. Roosevelt.

Pepper said he thought a plan calling for PWA expenditures in the field of self-liquidating projects, expanded old age pensions, and federal grants for education, public health, and handicapped children would win approval of the country.

Senator Burke (D., Neb.), an economy advocate, was quick to disagree.

"Government spending, as an aid to recovery, has failed," he declared. "I think our experiences of the last few years should be lesson enough. What we need is a reduction in federal expenditures all down the line to encourage private expenditures."

Burke said he thought there had been "ample demonstration" in the last few months that the country wanted economy, not more spending.

Federal Deficit

Treasury officials estimated today that the federal deficit this year would fall $500,000,000 short of the $4,000,000,000 once expected.

Expenditures have been somewhat smaller and income slightly larger than they expected when they mapped out the $9,500,000,000 spending program about a year ago.

With six weeks of the fiscal year which ends June 30 yet to go, the treasury had spent $8,025,790,442 and taken in $4,949,631,914, creating a deficit of $3,076,158,528.

The public debt now is a record high of $40,227,673,187, which is $3,063,000,000 more than it was a year ago.

Garner on Diet

Washington, May 20 (AP)—Vice President Garner ate soft shell crabs at a luncheon given by Senator Radcliffe (D.-Md.) yesterday—but only after Mrs. Garner told him it was all right. The vice president is dieting to reduce his weight before hot weather strikes Washington. His diet, friends said, consists of eating carefully and not quite as much as usual.

Condition Favorable

Chicago, May 20 (AP)—The condition of Dr. Charles H. Mayo, famous Rochester, Minn., physician and surgeon, was reported as favorable today by attendants at Mercy Hospital, where he is being treated for pneumonia. Attendees said Dr. Mayo, who is 73, spent a comfortable night although he was not out of danger. He was stricken last night in his hotel suite.

Action on Investigations

Albany, N. Y., May 20 (AP)—Governor Lehman today is calling for investigations of the state liquor authority and "rising costs" of home relief administration awaited eleventh hour action today of New York's Assembly.

The measures, combined with two other resolutions authorizing surveys to determine best methods to stamp out social diseases and extend home rule to first class villages, would carry appropriations totaling $1,250,000.

"Widespread criticism" of activities of the state liquor authority, its officers and personnel, is cited in another investigation resolution which calls for a seven-member committee and a $15,000 appropriation.

The resolution to study and recommend measures to combat social diseases calls for a $25,000 appropriation and creation of an 11-member committee. The measure permits extension of a social disease survey to Denmark and Sweden.

Youth Is Arrested After Girl Falls From Moving Car

Dominic Jacobellis Is Held in $1,000 Bail on Charge of Assault; Girl Is at Hospital

Miss Mary Squires, 15, of 62 Flatbush avenue, is a patient in the Kingston Hospital, and Dominic Jacobellis, 22, of 14 Clifton avenue, is under arrest on a charge of assault in the third degree, as the result of injuries sustained by the girl early this morning in a fall from the running board of Jacobellis's automobile on O'Neil street.

The arrest of Jacobellis followed a telephone call to police headquarters from the Kingston Hospital at 12:42 o'clock this morning that two young men had brought a young girl to the hospital for treatment.

Officers Leonard and Hess were sent to the hospital and brought Jacobellis and Frank Bunce back to police headquarters where they were questioned. According to the police the girl had stepped up on the running board of the auto while it was standing on O'Neil street, just off Broadway, when

France Anxious to See Soviet Russia Join Their Lineup

Unusual Unanimity of British Opinion Favoring Tie-Up With Russia Is Reported

(By The Associated Press)

Signs of stress and turmoil intensified in Asia today as in Europe the pressure of the French government and public opinion in England weighed on Britain to bring Soviet Russia into the British-French lineup.

In the Near East, Palestine's aroused Jews worked beneath an outward calm to arrange economic measures in protest against Britain's plan to give Arabs dominance in the Holy Land. Jewish leaders counted on a general policy of non-cooperation to register their dissatisfaction more effectively than open rebellion.

Jehel Druze hill tribes in Syria began a new campaign for independence as dissension grew, apparently led by the French agreement in principle to re-attach the republic of Hatay (the state of Alexandretta) to Turkey.

In the far east, five Japanese cabinet members reached an agreement on Japan's position in the European situation and were expected shortly to issue a statement explaining the terms of their as yet unannounced decision, the result of three months' discussions.

Reliable sources in London, meanwhile, indicated unusual unanimity of British opinion favoring a tie-up with Russia as the drawn-out negotiations shifted to Paris. There, British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax was to talk with French Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, preparatory to conversations with Ivan Maisky, Russia's delegate to a League of Nations council meeting in Geneva Monday.

Said to Involve Reduction of Present 2 1/2 Per Cent Rate on Undistributed Profits to 1 1/2

Spending Program

Pepper Says Senate Will Name New Spending Program if President Doesn't

Washington, May 20 (AP)—A compromise of revising corporate taxes, which advocates said might remove the chief obstacle to adjournment of Congress around July 15, was discussed by legislative leaders today.

It was said reliably to involve reduction of the present 2 1/2 per cent rate on undistributed profits to 1 1/2 per cent.

Retention of the principle of the tax advocates of the compromise said, would meet President Roosevelt's recent demand that either the controversial levy be allowed to stand or some other impost be devised which would prevent tax avoidance.

Some senators who have kept in close touch with efforts to revise taxes said they were satisfied there would be little administration opposition to readjustment of other corporate levies, provided the present level of federal revenues was maintained.

A group headed by Senator Harrison (D., Miss.) has been working on a schedule which would provide a maximum tax of 18 per cent on corporate income, with allowances to be made for loss carryovers and for revaluation of capital stock. Present levies run from 16 1/2 to 19 per cent, depending on the amount of profits distributed, with preferential treatment for small businesses having earnings of $25,000 or less.

The plan on which the Harrison group has been working calls for repeal of the undistributed profits levy, but a compromise which could go through Congress without great controversy might be acceptable.

Two Flags Found; One Unidentified

Official Flag of Kingston, One of Strange Design Are Discovered

Two flags were found in the tower record room in the city hall on Friday afternoon. One is the official city flag and the other a flag that no one in the city hall was able to identify.

The unknown flag has a red border surrounding a white field. In the center of the white field are three dark blue perpendicular stripes. The flag is attached to a staff, and if the reader is able to know what the flag is intended to represent, Thomas W. Miller, secretary to Mayor Heiselman, would be glad to be informed.

The official city flag was adopted by the Common Council on July 15, 1920. The flag was designed by the late Judge A. T. Clearwater, when he was city historian.

The matter of an official flag for the city was taken up by the judge by the late Mayor Palmer Canfield in 1920, and led to the judge submitting the design which was approved by the council.

The official city flag has three stripes, red, white and blue. Embazoned on the white field of the flag is a golden eagle bearing in its talons a palm branch.

For several years, up until the time the city hall was damaged by fire, the flag was displayed at every meeting of the common council.

The flag found yesterday is the original flag that passed through the city hall fire.

Would 'Run It Out'

Oxford, England, May 20 (AP)—Total abstainers and moderate drinkers would run it out under a challenge issued here at a national fitness meeting. Frank Pakemham, Socialist member of the city council and brother of the Earl of Longford, challenged Oxford's teetotaler Quaker mayor, Henry T. Gillett, to organize a team of eight teetotalers to oppose a team of light imbibers in an eight-mile relay race. Both teams would be "regaled after the run by the losing captain, with a beverage of the winners' choosing."

Jars Yield Gold

Benton, Ky., May 20 (AP)—Farmers here are leaving no tin horns or stone jars unturned in their fields. Robert York found $100—five $20 gold pieces—in a jar while plowing his field last year. Victor Seaford, a neighbor, recently turned up another jar containing $690 in gold.

Royal Traffic

Toronto, May 20 (Canadian Press)—A Canadian air force gyroplane and radio may be used to direct traffic here next Monday when the king and queen arrive. Chief Constable D. C. Draper made an hour test of the idea in a flight at 2,000 feet altitude yesterday.

Clipper Off on Mail Flight to Europe Starting Transatlantic Air Service

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor
New York, May 20—A flying officer in a natty blue uniform will stick his fist, thumb upward, into the cockpit window of the world's biggest airplane today, and transport service between Europe and North America will be under way.

After ten years of planning, the North Atlantic will be spanned by airliners operating on schedule—just as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh predicted it would be back in 1927.

The "Yankee Clipper," a four-engined, deep-bellied craft which cruises at 160 miles an hour, will inaugurate the service with 100,000 letters in her holds.

No passengers will be carried on this first trip, on the 12th anniversary of the start of Lindbergh's memorable flight to Paris, nor on four successive trips at weekly intervals. But before July 1 Pan American Airways, owner of the clipper and five of her 41 1/2-ton sister ships, will offer 24-hour service to London.

By that time the company, the first to institute scheduled flights across the last ocean in the world, to be conquered by airliners, will be operating two round trips a week.

Skipper Arthur E. La Porte's gesture from the cockpit window, the signal to helpers on the quay at the Port Washington, L. I., base to cast off, is indicative of the almost casual nature of the flight.

Pan American for weeks has been ready to go. The last of the "survey" flights on both the so-called "northern" and "southern" routes was completed in 1937. Only the approvals of two government agencies, the civil aeronautics authority and the postoffice department, were necessary. Those were issued yesterday.

Hopes Are Doomed

Rome, May 20 (AP)—Fascists found cause for satisfaction in Prime Minister Chamberlain's declaration on British-Soviet Russian negotiations which they interpreted as admission that hopes of including Russia in the British front were doomed. They contrasted what they called "negotiations for an alliance which have become a grotesque controversy" with increasing solidarity of the Rome-Berlin axis evidenced by the military alliance to be signed Sunday.

Honey Bee Was Imported To America 300 Years Ago

The honey bee is not native to the United States, but was introduced here 300 years ago. There was no word for honey bee in the American Indian language, and bees became known to the Indians as the white man's fly. Authorities say that honey bees were introduced into New England in 1638, and that they probably were brought from Holland, writes a correspondent to the Chicago Tribune. These first bees were of the small type, commonly called black bees. They are common, but are not so popular among beekeepers as the larger kinds, such as Italian bees. The fact that wild honey bees have been found in hollow trees and in caves in widely scattered areas of this country during the last 300 years has led to the popular belief that they are native. But those familiar with the history of the honey bee say that the first wild ones in America were swarms that left their hives in New England and flew off into the woods. As civilization spread westward across the country the honey bee went with it, and often preceded the settlers. Beekeepers refer to the different kinds of honey bees as races rather than breeds or varieties. There are many races and they are divided roughly into three groups, the Eastern, the European and the African.

Williams Music Camp
Will Open On July 3

Brilliant musical events held at the Ernest Williams Music Camp during the summer 1938, attest to the camp's superior effort to promote the highest type of music education in America. The 1939 camp will open July 3, and continue until August 26.

Through Dr. Williams' determination and musical genius, the camp holds fast to the ideals which marked its beginning ten years ago, and this year, the tenth anniversary celebration will be held at the Saugerties camp.

During the past summer many symphonic concerts were presented under the baton of such leading bandmasters as Ferde Grofe and Arthur Pryor, but the highlight was Dr. Williams' new American opera, entitled "Rip Van Winkle," presented to a record breaking audience at the premier performance in the camp auditorium. Cavallera Rusticana was the first grand opera produced at the camp four years ago, then Faust was presented the following summer, then, Hansel and Gretel, and finally "Rip Van Winkle."

Dr. Williams' new Symphony No. 1 in C Minor, the first symphony ever written for band, introduced at the 1938 camp, has won much favor and is held in high esteem by prominent bandmasters here and abroad.

It is expected that the camp will enjoy capacity attendance this summer as it has in the past four years.

Win Scholarship Awards

Eric F. Fuegel and Walter Robinson of Kingston, students at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, are winners of scholarship awards for the coming school year.

but a group composed of members from all three schools will play a similar group of the same number of players. The games were selected by popular choice of the pupils and will be hit pin baseball, for the younger boys, schlag ball, for the older girls and softball for the older boys.

Hit pin baseball is a popular baseball lead up game which has many of the elements of baseball but is played with a larger ball which is kicked instead of batted. The runner is put out, not by being tagged but by hitting the base around which he is running.

Schlag ball combines the elements of baseball, dodgeball and basketball and is a popular game with both boys and girls. It is expected that three softball games will be in progress simultaneously on the upper level of Hasbrouck Park.

Some of the games will be presided over by pupil officials as they are each day on the school playgrounds. The baseball will be umpired by principals but scorers will be pupils.

Nurses Are Advised to Choose Approved Schools

Albany, May 20—A warning that high school graduates make sure that they are fully prepared to enter nurse training courses and that they select training schools that have been approved by the New York State Education Department, has been broadcast to all principals of high schools in the state in the form of a letter and pamphlet sent out by the New York State Nurses' Association, it was announced today.

Mrs. Ethel G. Prince, R. N., president of the association, said today that her organization is now prepared to provide a list of training schools that have been approved so far, and to offer guidance to all students who wish to become registered professional nurses or practical nurses, and how to enter the field of public health nursing.

"Students who are planning to become nurses should be very careful in their selection of schools for training," Mrs. Prince said. "The new Nurse Practice Law clearly stipulated that licenses will be granted only to those who have taken a specified course in a school approved by the State Department of Education and unless students are given some guidance they may make an unwise choice."

Used Containers
For Farm Products

The attention of packers and shippers of farm products is being called to a very recent addition to the Agriculture and Markets Law, applying to used containers.

It is Section 192-b of Article 16 of the Law and provides that: When farm products of the same kind as the original contents are packed in used containers by others than the original packers and sold, offered for sale or transported for sale, any markings pertaining to the original contents shall be erased, obliterated or such container shall be conspicuously marked or labeled and in the case of bags or sacks tagged on the outside with the words "Not Original Contents," in letters at least one inch in height.

It is stated that the intent of the law is not to prohibit or limit the use of used packages, but to provide a method whereby such packages may be reused without injury to the original packer who has affixed his name or brand to the container, and to prevent fraud or deceit.

Used containers may be prepared to meet the requirements of the law, when being used by others than the original packers, by the following methods:

Boxes and baskets: Either remove labels; remove stamp or stencil mark by scraping; obliterate marks or labels with wax crayons; paint over or use lamp black on marks or labels; stamp, stencil or write with wax crayon "Not Original Contents," in letters at least one inch high.

Sacks or bags may be turned to place brands inside, or the brands may be painted out, or they may be stamped or marked "Not Original Contents," in letters at least one inch high. Any tags pertaining to the original contents must be removed.

Poultrymen will note that the law applies, among other things, to shipments of eggs, and all crates should be inspected and marked so that they will comply with the law.

Blames Hats

St. Louis, May 20 (AP)—When a woman driver pulls a traffic boner you can blame it on her hat. That's the finding of Dr. Lowell S. Selling, eye specialist, who made a study of accidents in the Detroit recorder's court traffic clinic. "The type of hat which is pulled down over one eye is a driving hazard for any women because it limits her field of vision at the wheel," he declared. "She is telling the truth when she says, 'I didn't see it coming.'"

Honey Bee Was Imported To America 300 Years Ago

The honey bee is not native to the United States, but was introduced here 300 years ago. There was no word for honey bee in the American Indian language, and bees became known to the Indians as the white man's fly.

Authorities say that honey bees were introduced into New England in 1638, and that they probably were brought from Holland, writes a correspondent to the Chicago Tribune. These first bees were of the small type, commonly called black bees. They are common, but are not so popular among beekeepers as the larger kinds, such as Italian bees.

The fact that wild honey bees have been found in hollow trees and in caves in widely scattered areas of this country during the last 300 years has led to the popular belief that they are native. But those familiar with the history of the honey bee say that the first wild ones in America were swarms that left their hives in New England aparies and flew off into the woods. As civilization spread westward across the country the honey bee went with it, and often preceded the settlers.

Beekeepers refer to the different kinds of honey bees as races rather than breeds or varieties. There are many races and they are divided roughly into three groups, the Eastern, the European and the African.

Williams Music Camp Will Open On July 3

Brilliant musical events held at the Ernest Williams Music Camp during the summer 1938, attest to the camp's superior effort to promote the highest type of music education in America. The 1939 camp will open July 3, and continue until August 26.

Through Dr. Williams' determination and musical genius, the camp holds fast to the ideals which marked its beginning ten years ago, and this year, the tenth anniversary celebration will be held at the Saugerties camp.

During the past summer many symphonic concerts were presented under the baton of such leading bandmasters as Ferde Grofe and Arthur Pryor, but the highlight was Dr. Williams' new American opera, entitled "Rip Van Winkle," presented to a record breaking audience at the premier performance in the camp auditorium. Cavalleria Rusticana was the first grand opera produced at the camp four years ago, then Faust was presented the following summer, then, Hansel and Gretel, and finally "Rip Van Winkle."

Dr. Williams' new Symphony No. 1 in C Minor, the first symphony ever written for band, introduced at the 1938 camp, has won much favor and is held in high esteem by prominent bandmasters here and abroad.

It is expected that the camp will enjoy capacity attendance this summer as it has in the past four years.

but a group composed of members from all three schools will play a similar group of the same number of players. The games were selected by popular choice of the pupils and will be hit pin baseball, for the younger boys, schlag ball, for the older girls and softball for the older boys.

Hit pin baseball is a popular baseball lead up game which has many of the elements of baseball but is played with a larger ball which is kicked instead of batted. The runner is put out, not by being tagged but by hitting the base around which he is running.

Schlag ball combines the elements of baseball, dogball and basketball and is a popular game with both boys and girls. It is expected that three soft ball games will be in progress simultaneously on the upper level of Hasbrouck Park.

Some of the games will be presided over by pupil officials as they are each day on the school playgrounds. The baseball will be umpired by principals but scorers will be pupils.

Nurses Are Advised to Choose Approved Schools

Albany, May 20—A warning that high school graduates make sure that they are fully prepared to enter nurse training courses and that they select training schools that have been approved by the New York State Education Department, has been broadcast to all principals of high schools in the state in the form of a letter and pamphlet sent out by the New York State Nurses' Association.

Mrs. Ethel G. Prince, R. N., president of the association, said today that her organization is now prepared to provide a list of training schools that have been approved so far, and to offer guidance to all students who wish to become registered professional nurses or practical nurses, and how to enter the field of public health nursing.

"Students who are planning to become nurses should be very careful in their selection of schools for training," Mrs. Prince said. "The new Nurse Practice Law clearly stipulates that licenses will be granted only to those who have taken a specified course in a school approved by the State Department of Education and unless students are given some guidance they may make an unwise choice."

June Brides Are Favoring Diaphanous Gowns

By ADELAIDE KERR
(P) Fashion Editor

June brides are going to march to the altar in airy diaphanous gowns.

Some of New York's smartest spring brides have swept down flower-banked aisles in gowns of net, marquisette or tulle, and similar dresses will be seen from Maine to California when the month of summer weddings begins its bridal pageantry.

In spite of the vogue for airy gowns, however, the classic satin is second favorite. One of the most beautiful shown this season is a princess gown of ivory satin with bodice insets of cream Alençon lace, which is repeated at the pointed finish of its long slim sleeves. Other gowns of similar lines are designed of cream lace.

But the frothy gowns capture the fancy of most young brides. One full skirted white mousseline de soie gown is designed with a wide collar, plastron front and long sleeves edged with shirred Valenciennes lace—a dress to make any man catch his breath.

Others of net have puffed sleeves, neat little waists and full foaming skirts. There are also some youthful organdies.

The trains are virtually always part of the skirts of the gowns, which measure from three to four yards from shoulder to train tip. There's a rule, about the length of those trains, say the experts who outfit thousands of Manhattan's brides:

"Big church, long train; small church, brief train."

Tulle or sheer net makes most of the veils. The shorter waist or hip length is preferred by many young brides, though the full train length is seen at many fashionable church weddings. They swing from coronets or net, satin or leaves, from youthful lace or tulle bonnets or from various orange blossom arrangements.

White is still the favorite bridal gown color, though blush pink is chosen by a number of brides.

Designers have given special thought this year to brides who want to be married without the traditional white gown and veil. Among the smartest gowns designed for them are crepes (mauve, hyacinth blue, dusty rose and beige) designed with short or five-length sleeves, and supple floor-length skirts.

Very simple weddings where a street-length frock is required are provided for with crepe frock and redingote ensembles or combinations of a chiffon frock and fitted silk coat in soft blue, navy blue or gray. Experts settle the skirt-length question with this decree: Floor-length skirts for an afternoon or evening wedding at a simple ceremony at the minister's home or at the church in the presence of only one or two witnesses—or even for a house wedding when the bridal pair is leaving immediately after the ceremony.

A new filling for Graham bread sandwiches is made by mixing one-fourth of a cup of strained honey with three tablespoons of peanut butter and two tablespoons of chopped raisins. This makes enough for two large sandwiches for the youngster's school lunch box. For afternoon tea use the filling in white bread sandwiches, cut in small squares and toasted.

Now is a good time to use up some of that grape juice you canned last fall. Use it as a liquid called for in spring preserves such as cherry, rhubarb, berry, orange, raisin or date. The grape flavor does a lot to other fruit and berry flavors.

Friends Make The Best Guests For A Bride's Debut As Hostess

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(P) Feature Service Writer

June brides soon will be thinking, perhaps worrying, too, about their first entertaining in their new home.

Perhaps the best inaugural for the new housewife's social program would be a tea for some of her best friends. A tea doesn't require elaborate preparations and doesn't tax the bride's culinary skill. Yet it does call into play her skill as a hostess.

Guests should be invited at a specific hour; plans should be worked out carefully in advance. Don't attempt to serve any new foods; choose from your repertoire of tested receipts.

The tea itself should not be prepared until the last minute. Black tea is a general favorite. Here's a way to make enough to serve four or five cups: Put three teaspoons of tea into a pot that has been rinsed with boiling water. Then pour five cups of boiling water on the tea, cover the pot and let it steep three minutes in a warm place. Then strain it into a hot serving pot. Be sure to have a pitcher of plain boiling water on the serving table, too, so that your guests can regulate the strength of the tea to their own tastes.

On the table near the teapot you should have a bowl of half-loaves of sugar; a dish of thin slices of lemon and orange, each slice with a couple of cloves speared into it; and a pitcher of cream. Sprigs of fresh mint are a refreshing addition, too, if you can get them.

For refreshments? Sandwiches, no doubt. Dainty sandwiches, shorn of crusts. Make them up ahead of time, wrap them in damp cloths and keep them in the refrigerator.

Here are some things to remember when making sandwiches: Always use a silver knife for spreading butter and fillings; spread the butter on first—that will keep damp fillings from soaking into the bread; soften the butter with a fork—never melt it; to keep your sandwiches neatly uniform in shape and size, pile them three high, then remove all the crusts and cut them into shapes at the same time. Chilled sandwich fillings spread easiest.

Plain buttered bread always is good with tea. You can have dishes of marmalade or jams handy for your guests to pick from for spreads. It's also nice to have stacks of hot buttered toast on the table; damson plum butter is delicious on toast.

A mold of white cream cheese in a circle of ruby red current jam looks pretty on the table and will make an excellent spread for your toast or for biscuits, if you serve them.

Now you're all set, except for some dainty to top off with. A dish of salted nutmeats, of candied fruit strings, preserved ginger or chocolate peppermints fits in here. For a more ambitious little drop cakes or fingers of angel food or sponge cake. And date squares or some tempting refrigerator cookies will always be welcome.

THAT CUP OF COFFEE CAN TAKE MANY SHAPES

Here is some advice about coffee that brides—and other housewives—may find handy:

Breakfast Coffee—You'll have your own favorite method of making your coffee brew, always use enough coffee (one heaping tablespoon to each cup of water is the standard proportion); make it fresh every time and carefully keep your coffee-making equipment clean.

Viennese Coffee—Make coffee as you usually do, but top each cup with a floating island of unsweetened whipped cream.

Cafe Au Lait—Make double strength coffee for this favorite beverage, and an equal amount of hot milk. Pour freshly-made coffee and hot milk into cups at the same time, twin pots for coffee and milk as shown in the illustration are attractive.

Demi-Tasse—After dinner coffee, or demi-tasse, is also made double-strength and served usually without cream or sugar in small cups.

well seasoned cottage cheese with a little gelatin or press the cheese into a buttered mold and let stand in a cold place.

Try this at your next cocktail party: Wrap pimento stuffed olives in sausage meat, seasoned slightly with catsup. Broil about 5 minutes, turning several times. Insert wood picks and stick into a large, well-scrubbed turnip.

Cheese sauce for cherry fritters—it may sound odd but it tastes great. Good idea to use for dessert for spring luncheon when the first course has been a salad. With plenty of hot coffee this dessert will go over big.

Jam Pot Dessert

When you are at a loss for dessert, take a glass of jelly, whip it frothy with a fork and use it for covering squares of cake or drop cakes. Sprinkle with coconut and you have something with a professional touch.

Cold Meat Garnish

Stuffed eggs made by mixing the yolks with chili sauce, are a piquant garnish for cold meats. Or you can stuff the eggs with salad dressing mixed with chopped cooked ham, diced pickles and just a suggestion of onion.

Know How to Soothe Your Frayed Nerves

Turn "Aches" into Vitality
Poor Mary suffers tortures with her nerves, but Bob's sure it's all her imagination.

Wrong, Bob. Headaches and pains, her fatigue are as real as the chair she's sitting on.

A shame, too, for nerves given the proper care can be a woman's greatest source of charm, energy. But so often—modern living being as hectic as it is—nerves are driven to the breaking point. Learn to let up in your work, say the psychologists. Dawdle a bit at lunch, break your afternoon for tea—in English fashion. And in play, too, take it easy. Don't tear strenuously into games or exercise, so often the case with the high-strung. Stroll, don't hurry, when you walk.

Worry? Another enemy to nerves. Redirect the energy you pour into useless fretting. Have an outside interest, join a club. And such an interest is a fine antidote, too, for days filled with petty details, annoyances.

Exchange nervous aches and jitters for a healthful vivacity. In our 32-page booklet a well-known physician explains nervous disorders, what to do about them. Gives proper diet and body care, advice on insomnia, irritability, nervous indigestion.

HERE COMES THE BRIDE: Tips For Daytime Weddings

HERE'S THE LATEST in bridegroom's outfits (left), approved by Raymond G. Tyeffer, men's fashion authority. Blue braided cutaway, blue felt top hat, blue and gray tie, striped trousers, double-breasted white waistcoat, wing collar, gray mocha gloves, black shoes. Spats not necessary in summer. (Above) A woman guest takes an usher's arm. He makes a bit of polite conversation.

THE MAID OF HONOR looks after the bride. She helps her dress, arranges her veil. She marches down the aisle eight paces in front of the bride, who is on her father's right arm. She stands at the bride's left, holds the bridal bouquet. After the ceremony she arranges the dress and train so the bride can leave without stumbling.

GUARDING THE WEDDING RING is the chief duty of the best man. During the ceremony he stands at bridegroom's right, takes the ring from his left waistcoat pocket and hands it to the clergyman, who gives it to the bridegroom to place on the third finger of the bride's left hand. He usually gives the clergyman the fee, provided by the bridegroom. (All church expenses are paid by the bride's family.) Afterwards he helps with the luggage.

MOST BRIDES today do not wear gloves during the ceremony. If the bride wears gloves, however, she slips the wedding finger of the glove so the ring may be slipped on easily. She wears her engagement ring on her right hand—or leaves it off during the wedding. When she turns to march out she takes her husband's right arm, takes her wedding bouquet from her maid of honor and transfers it to her own right arm. Her mother should be seated in the first row of pews in the left section, facing the altar. After her father takes her to the altar he stands a little to the rear until he gives her in marriage. Then he joins his wife. The bridegroom's family occupies the front pews on the right-hand side of the church.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters

Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.
Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate, Seaciff.

Yesterday: Gramp crashes a party for Nola. Tally takes him away. Then Betsy butts in.

Chapter 18

Nola And Tally

BETSY, with native dignity, her chubby fingers clutching Tex, went straight toward Bob. "Oh, Mister Bob," she trembled into the sudden silence, "can I please have some ice-cream?"

Stooping, he unfastened her fingers from the cat's fur, then picked her up. "No ice-cream," he pronounced. "Back to bed for you, young lady!"

Her cherub face puckered with dismay. "Please, Mister Bob?" "Isn't she the cutest thing!" Mary Adams exclaimed. "Who is she, Bob?"

"Old Talbot's grandchild." "Oh, let her have something to eat," Mary urged. "Want a sandwich, honey?"

Betsy nodded tearfully. "Mink," Bob laughed and carried her into the dining room.

So once more that evening one of the Mack family became the center of attraction at Jocelyn's party.

"I think I shall have to choose between hysterics or isolation," Jocelyn informed Geoff, dropping into a chair.

At that precise moment Tex observed his benefactor. Memories of delicious salmon erased his annoyance at being peremptorily introduced into a room full of strange people. Jocelyn was not strange and, although Tex did not care particularly for women, she deserved consideration because she allowed him bed and unusual board. And so, without more ado, he sprang into her lap and rubbed his big furry head under her chin.

Geoff stared. He started to reach for the cat. "Here, Lyn, I'll put the beast outdoors."

Jocelyn smothered a giggle, wondering what Geoff's reaction would be if Tex scratched him. At least this was not the time and place to find out.

"Never mind," she said sharply. "He's dangerous, Geoff. He might bite you."

Geoff drew back. "Then why does he like you?" he demanded suspiciously.

"I haven't the slightest notion," she fibbed, "but I'll put him outside."

Just as she reached the door with Tex, Tally and Nola came in. "We're looking for Betsy," Nola smiled. "Oh, there she is, Tally."

And another Mack was gently but firmly removed from the party and taken to bed.

Geoff said: "Lyn, I've had enough of this, haven't you? Let's collect the crowd and take them to my place for an hour or so."

"You manage it, Geoff. I'm not very responsible right now."

With renewed enthusiasm everyone piled into cars and started for town. Geoffrey and Jocelyn arrived far enough ahead of the others to open the house, turn on the lights and the radio.

Stark Jealousy

THE Kensing house was Colonial style, tastefully furnished. Geoffrey lived here with his mother who, right now, was summing at Arrowhead Springs; relieved, she had confided to Jocelyn, to be able to use the summer heat as an excuse to open her mountain place and get away from polo and polo ponies. Jocelyn liked Mrs. Kensing. She was a tolerant person with a keen sense of humor.

The concentrated blasts of many horns announced the arrival of guests. Jocelyn declared, "I must powder my nose!" and left Geoff to welcome the crowd. Descending a bit ten minutes later she stopped at a turn in the stairway to look over the heads below and see if everyone had come. Bob, Mary, Ruth, Jim, Eleanor . . . where was Nola?

Discreetly questioning here and there, she discovered no one had seen Nola and no one had brought her. Thorn had been around a few minutes before, she ascertained. An intuitive twinge warned her. Abruptly, she was positive of Nola's whereabouts. Nola had taken advantage of the rush and stayed behind at Seaciff with Tally!

"I must be blind," Lyn thought dully. "Nola is in love with Tally. Thorn . . . Thorn mustn't be hurt by . . . he mustn't know. I won't let her hurt him this way. I'm going to Seaciff and drag her here if I have to! For Thorn's sake . . ."

Slipping unobserved through the conservatory and thence through a side entrance, she found Geoffrey's car, slid under the wheel and eased it as quietly as possible down the driveway and into the street.

Once on the highway she stepped on the accelerator and covered the three miles to Seaciff in almost as many minutes. But when she pulled in before the four-car garage she saw Thorn's sedan and realized that he, too, had missed Nola and returned.

Thorn, driving to Seaciff, knew stark, unreasoning jealousy. It possessed him to the extent where he scarcely could coordinate his thoughts enough to handle the car. When Nola had insisted on his taking two other couples in his car and letting her follow with Bob, he should have known something was in the wind. He supposed he should have known weeks ago.

His laugh, caught up by the night breeze, was harsh and mirthless. Nola, running over on the other side of the fence day and night, Nola, wearing simple clothes, Nola, making a fuss over a disgusting old man and a smuggy-faced child. It all added up to one conclusion!

Nola fancied herself in love with young Talbot Mack.

Having had, always, too much money, she had no respect for it. This was, without doubt, the first time in her life she had come into contact with poverty. Sympathy had blinded her to all sense of proportion. This Mack fellow was a handsome brute—oh, he would add that—but still a boorish fellow with no brains and no money, no finer instincts. Certainly not the type who could ever make a girl like Nola happy.

It was up to him to save Nola from herself. Save her from making a mess of her life. He could forgive her the foolishness because he comprehended how her sympathies had been worked upon. Yet he would not forgive her too easily. He would be firm.

So deciding, calming himself a little, he swerved into the driveway and halted before the garage. He stepped out of the car and looked around. Then he heard voices from the direction of the swimming pool. Approaching across the thick carpet of grass, he surprised Nola and Tally coming out of the pool, laughing as if they thoroughly enjoyed this mad capering under the summer moon.

"Get Away—Slay Away!" "NOLA!" he called. "What are you doing here?"

"Swimming," she returned. "The water is marvelous, darling, and I was so tired of being nice to people."

Her casualness incensed him. "Nola," he ordered, "be kind enough to dress at once and come with me. People are no doubt talking already!"

"Don't be absurd," she chided, an edge to her voice. "I am not at all concerned. I don't care whether people whisper, talk, sing, or shout about me! I wanted to swim. I wanted to talk to Tally. I'm having a good time and I have no intention of leaving. If you want to join us—fine; if you don't—"

She shrugged. "Aren't you forgetting we're engaged?" he demanded.

"So what?" Nola drawled, hands resting lightly on her hips. "If you imagine for one moment that you are ever going to order me around, Thorn Russell, just get it out of your head!"

Tally approached the verbal combatants. "I'm sorry, if I've caused any trouble, Nola," he said, then turned to Thorn. "Your guests made so much noise I was unable to sleep. Miss Cranston very kindly invited me to swim with her. I certainly have no wish to cause a misunderstanding between you two."

"You've never caused me anything but trouble!" Thorn snapped. "Besides, you don't belong here. You have no right here. Get away from this pool and stay away from it . . . stay on your own side of the grounds!"

Tally's mouth set in a grim line. "I have never trespassed without invitation, Mr. Russell. I was invited here and I have no intention of leaving. I never could stand that sour face of yours, anyhow!"

"How dare you talk that way to me!" Thorn raged, his neat mustache quivering, his pale eyes distended. He started toward Tally, walking gingerly on the wet tiled edge of the pool. "You upstart! You—you poor white trash! I won't stand for your insolence! I—I—"

Tally flipped out his arm, caught Thorn's shoulder and shoved him backward into the pool. This should cool him off," he observed to Nola.

Jocelyn ran up just in time to see her brother, choking and spluttering and fuming, floundering toward the ladder. She reached for his hand and helped him out of the water.

Tally had not moved. His hold eyes challenged Thorn to further insult. Nola was doubled over, shrieking with helpless laughter. "I—I never saw anything so funny in all my life," she finally gasped. "You—you're so dignified, Thorn darling!"

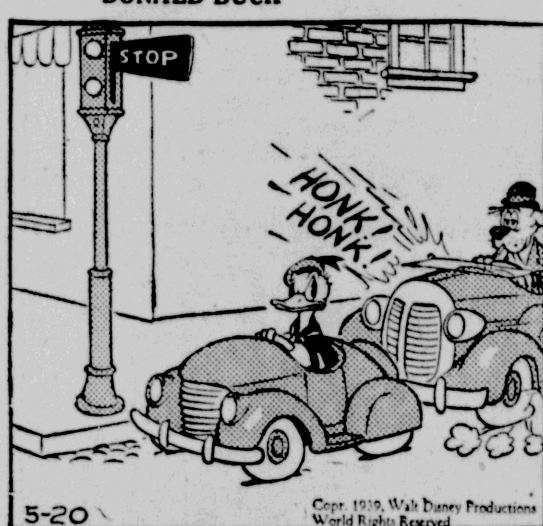

Thorn, his teeth chattering, said, "I see nothing humorous in being pushed into my own swimming pool by a savage monster!"

As if he hoped to squelch Nola he failed. His words merely sent her off into another gale of laughter. "Shut up!" he finally howled, abandoning all effort at control. "Shut up and get out of my sight—both of you!"

Early in the 19th century, Charles Mackintosh, a Scotch manufacturer, discovered a method of waterproofing cloth by means of a rubber. Garments made from this cloth were called "mackintoshes."

"What does your club do?" one young lady inquired of another. Before the club member had a chance to make a reply, one of her kid brothers piped up: "Oh, they just meet an' eat." (This is probably the answer to what most clubs and organizations do).

Among the more unusual products of rubber is putty. Ordinary putty, used to hold glass in metal frames, often hardens and breaks loose. The rubber putty clings tightly to metal and glass and does not become brittle.

WHAT WOMEN WANT

In an endeavor to find out what women want, the Uptown Business Men's Association has invited six Ulster County women to express their views at a "Consumers' Dinner" to be held Monday evening. The local business men anticipate expressions of criticism on local business methods and also suggestions for making Kingston stores better places to shop. Constructive criticism is very often beneficial and with this in mind the local business men have invited criticism with the hope of furnishing a cure.

Since women control most of the purchasing power, it is a wise move on the part of local business men to find out what Ulster County women think of local business methods. It is this personal attention to customers, giving people what they want in a friendly and accommodating way that has made Kingston a great shopping center. Local merchants have proven already to the complete satisfaction of their customers that they have the same merchandise that can be bought elsewhere and for a price as low and maybe less.

Women know how to buy and they also have learned that buying from local stores is the wise way of purchasing. When goods are bought at the door from strangers or from long distances, there is no guarantee either of quality or quantity. Local storekeepers must guard their reputations, while a door-to-door salesman may be in another town ere the defects are found in the goods.

If further proof is required that women know what they want it can be found in what the Women's Auxiliary of the Railway Mail Association says women want in the homes. The following was for the information of builders:

A reliable architect, reputable builder, all-inclusive standard plan, price within reason, complete contract, thorough inspection, simple financing on payments like rent, with advance payments acceptable, affording discount.

Design of dignity and refinement, suiting needs of site and neighborhood, providing present comfort with possibility of later additions without changing basic design.

Garage attached, with cement floor, gas, electricity, water, drain; loft for storage, space for workbench, tools, bicycles and wheel toys.

Building planned for lifetime, with lifetime lasting materials.

Fire protection and insulation. Windows uniform.

Square or squarish houses of two and one-half stories, because most economical to build and operate. Full basement with storage and play room.

Laundry on first floor, and a small room for mother's office, which can be used for sick room or guest room at need. Bath. Stairway from service door to center of upper floor. Kitchen, dining-room, dining nook. Porch.

On second floor, three bedrooms, bath and shower; cross ventilation, cedar closets. Wall space adequate.

Kitchen U-shaped, overlooking play yard. Lots of closets and cupboards. Safe and some places to put things like coats, games, books, raincoats, rubbers, baseball bats, blankets, first aid, household records and odd lots of treasures.

They want a good deal for their money—that's plain. It is also plain that if enough of them make enough determined effort, they can get it. Good basic design is of the first importance. Books and baseball bats fit into it. Bad design is always expensive to build, to live in and to repair. These are sound demands.

ROYALTY

The old loyalties die hard. At a time when royalty has been thought of by most Americans as a decadent superstition, and kings and queens mere players aping the old political realities, here come George and Elizabeth looking very much like the real thing.

In Canada, at least—which stands midway in spirit between England and America—it is evident that royal pair are taken very much at the old story-book value. The young King and Queen are veritable fairy-tale characters, with auras around their heads and grace, virtue and authority shining out from them. Their lightest words are memorable. To have seen them and been near them and heard their voices is an experience to be treasured for a lifetime and told, long in the future, to children and grandchildren.

That the royal pair in this case are so unassuming, so modest and democratic rather than regal in the old sense, seems all the more miraculous. Here are the foremost representatives of royalty and high prerogative in all the world, the accepted source of lawful authority over one-fourth of the human race—smiling in honest friendliness at every Tom, Dick and Mary as if to say: "We're really as democratic as you are, at heart, and wish we could get away from all this silly red tape and come right into your homes."

They probably mean it, too. And when they come over here, they may give a demonstration of simple honesty, charm and goodwill that will warm up even the traditionally king-hating republic.

For we, too, however hard-boiled, have not entirely outgrown the fairy-tale stage. And the more realistic of us may see, in the present state of the world, very good practical reasons for giving the visitors "a great big hand."

THE MOON AND THE PRAWN

What is a prawn? Something people eat in English novels. And in fancy sauces in New Orleans. That's the extent of ordinary knowledge. John Kieran might be able to add to it, perhaps?

A prawn is a shrimplike, decapod crustacean, found in all temperate and tropical waters, fresh and salt, says the dictionary. The Bermuda prawn's scientific name is Anchistoides. He's shorter than his name—there's only about an inch of him.

Every month, a few days before new moon, the prawn appear in surface waters near the shores of Bermuda. They come, in huge numbers, about one hour after sunset, swarm to the surface for a few hours and are gone again. A few nights before, during and after new moon, there they are. Then they are gone for the next month, to regions still unknown, till just time for new moon again.

Dr. J. F. G. Wheeler of the Bermuda Biological Survey and his co-workers have discovered this. It always happens and they don't know why.

We don't know, either. The moon is funny that way.

SULPHANILIMIDE A USEFUL DRUG

About one year ago I spoke of a physician friend in an adjoining office who told me of the wonderful results he had obtained in throat, child-birth, and general cases by the use of sulphathiazole.

This is the drug with which so many physicians have been able to save lives because it can successfully fight some of the deadly forms of the streptococcus organism.

However, there were so many severe reactions and even deaths from sulphathiazole that physicians were warned of these dangers in an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association. This editorial suggested that more experimental work should be done with this drug before it came into everyday use by the general practitioner.

However, at the last International Postgraduate Medical Assembly held in Philadelphia a few months ago, Dr. Perrin H. Long, Baltimore, stated: "Every physician, today, should know when and how to give sulphathiazole."

That is, knowing "when" will save life, and knowing "how" will prevent accidents, some of which might be fatal.

In severe tissue and blood infections (as hemolytic streptococci where the patient may die in 24 hours), give large doses of sulphathiazole at the start so that the concentration of the drug may be at its most effective point within six hours. The same plan may be followed, approximately, in cases of streptococcal sore throat (often so rapidly fatal), scarlet fever, erysipelas, and a fever.

Smaller doses of sulphathiazole are useful in bone and middle ear infections caused by the streptococcus and staphylococcus organisms.

Dr. Long outlines the treatment for venereal and other bladder and urinary infections. The toxic symptoms of poisoning caused by this drug are lack of appetite, dizziness, blueness or darkness of skin due to lack of oxygen, and a slight rise in temperature.

No man should drink liquor or attempt to drive a car while under treatment by sulphathiazole.

I am writing for just the second time about this drug because the former time I was quoting the warning against its general use. Today, sulphathiazole appears to have taken its rightful place as a useful drug now that it is known when and how to give it.

GRANGE NEWS

Rosendale Grange

A real old-fashioned bread baking contest for members of Rosendale Grange has just been announced by Mrs. Neal Hotelling of Bloomington, who as chairman of the Grange service and hospital committee will have charge of the affair.

Miss Winifred Richtershan of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Co., and one other judge have been secured. The object of the competition is to revive interest in home baking of bread, and to prove that Grangers can still produce a prize winning loaf.

The date set for the contest is Monday, May 22, and it will be held at Rosendale Grange Hall at 8:30 p. m. The Granger who makes the best loaf of white bread in the local contest will compete next fall in a county-wide match with first prize winners from all subordinate Granges in this county.

The final lap in the contest will be a state-wide bread baking bout next December during the State Grange session, when winners from 55 counties will compete for the title of state champion bread baker.

The Virginia baked ham supper served in the Grange Hall on Wednesday night of this week by the ladies of the Rosendale Grange was well attended by both local and out-of-town folks.

Spart to Business Might Easily Result From Passage of Senator Mead's Credit Bill

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 20.—A spurt to American business of unprecedented proportions might easily result from the passage of a bill introduced by Senator James Mead of New York which is understood to have administration backing. It is a revision of an earlier bill, introduced several months ago, relating to intermediate credit for small businesses, but the new measure goes much farther in opening up the channels of credit than any preceding proposal.

The businesses which would get the credit are those which can use any sum up to $1,000,000 in credit, so that a goodly number would hardly come within the category of "small businesses," as the term has been popularly used, though many really small businesses would, of course, wish to take advantage of the plan.

The proposal, in brief, contemplates an insurance of bank loans, only those banks which are themselves insured under the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation are to be eligible, which means banks which must have some form of federal supervision.

The new legislation, if adopted by Congress, would permit a bank to insure any loan up to 90 per cent of its possible loss. The loans are to be made eligible for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Banks, so they could hardly become frozen assets or impair the standing of a bank because they could quickly be turned into cash.

Periodic reports would be demanded of banks and corporations participating in the loans, and regulations would be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which is to be the principal lending agency behind the loans. Interest rates are to be fixed at four per cent and an additional one per cent is to be charged as the insurance premium, but the RFC would have the right to permit the banks under certain circumstances to increase interest rates. The legislation would, however, establish four per cent as the base. The text of the important provision of the Mead bill, which doubtless will be incorporated with a similar measure introduced in the House by Representative Robert Allen of Pennsylvania, follows:

"Subject to the provisions of this act, the corporation (meaning the RFC), upon application, is authorized to insure any bank against the whole or any part of the loss or losses, in respect of principal or interest, or both, which such bank may sustain in excess of an amount equal to 10 per centum of the principal amount of any loan which such bank may make to any person for any business purpose, and for the purpose of this act the corporation is authorized to determine what constitutes a business purpose. For such insurance the corporation is authorized to determine what constitutes a business purpose."

"For such insurance, the corporation shall charge a premium of not less than one-fourth of one per centum nor more than one per centum per annum of the unpaid balance of such loan. Provided that the corporation in its discretion may charge a higher premium, or may refuse to grant insurance."

The next meeting will be held June 13, when the election and installation of officers will take place. Mrs. George W. Simpkins, former president of the P. T. A. of School No. 2, and newly elected president of the Federated Council, will be the guest and will install the new officers.

Woodstock Unit

Woodstock, May 18.—The Woodstock Parent-Teacher Association met on Friday, May 12, in the Woodstock school. Several plans for summer activities were made, including a Field Day program, and a graduation exercises for pupils of the Woodstock school.

Mr. Todd, Mrs. Cohn and Mr. Edwards were appointed on a committee to plan the Field Day exercises, and were asked to select assistants to serve on their committee. Mrs. Downer and Mrs. Layman were appointed to approach the school board about graduation exercises and to see if it would be possible to hold them in the Town Hall.

After the regular meeting Toward Boggs spoke on the work of the National Youth Administration and center in Lake Hill. He described the work already accomplished that underway, and the group's plans for the future. He explained that the group was to be made up of five boys from each county of the state although so far not all counties have filled their quota. Parents of the boys are on home relief, and the boys themselves are selected because of their special need for the advantages offered by the center, and their own environment, and which are deemed necessary to fit them for useful adult life.

A number of interesting questions were asked from the audience and Mr. Boggs answered them as nearly as he was able, though admitting that his knowledge was limited to the local group of its activities. So far the boys have conducted a gardening project, begun work on their heads on in Zena, developed a co-operative supply store under their own management, and when more equipment is available, the group will take up further study of useful crafts and skills.

Honey and Ham

Strained honey is a mighty good topping for baked ham. Spread half cup of honey over the ham for the last 30 minutes of the baking. If you like a spicy touch, add a little cinnamon and cloves to the honey.

Women to Stage Drive for Dimes

"A Mile of Dimes" is the goal of an enthusiastic group of ladies decided to try for on Saturday, June 3, to aid the Y. M. C. A. in making the necessary repairs to the swimming pool. At the call of Mrs. Adam Thiel, general chairman, the following ladies met at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening and mapped out the preliminary plans for the idea: Mrs. Julian Gifford, Mrs. E. T. Bookwalter, Mrs. Robert L. Sisson and Mrs. Joseph Garland.

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman has given the executive committee his permission and endorsement to solicit at strategic locations in the city "dimes" between the hours of 9 a. m. and 9 p. m. on June 3.

Many helpers are being enlisted, who will have streamers reading "Help Repair the Y Pool," and will present to those aiding the effort a souvenir in Y. M. C. A. colors. It is most important that this money be raised in order to have the pool useable by September 1.

Strips of adhesive tape will be placed on the sidewalks and as the donors give the dimes the attendants will stick them on the tape. Taking in all the locations there will be stretched out a mile of tape.

Italy-In-Jugoslavia

Citizens of Ancona, on the east coast of Italy, face another bit of Italian soil just across the Adriatic on the west coast of Yugoslavia. Called Zara, this seaport, with its environs, was ceded to Italy by Yugoslavia in the treaty of Rapallo in 1920. Once the capital of Dalmatia, the Zara area comprises 42 square miles of territory and includes some 19,000 people. Its Italian population and historic association were arguments for its assignment to Italy. Protected by a group of small islands which almost surround the promontory on which it lies, Zara is strategically located as a potential base for naval operations. The technical geographic name for such a region is "enclave," which means an area enclosed by alien territory.

Colonials Nip Glens Falls 4-3; Diamond Belt Champions Lose

Rally in First Inning Nets Four Runs for Locals

Charlie Neff Gives Only Four Hits — Bennington Club Here on Sunday Afternoon

In last night's New York State League the Kingston Colonials edged out Glens Falls, pushing across four runs, all of them in the opening inning. Charlie Neff hurled for the locals and gave up but four hits and made his entrance a memorable one by striking out 10 batsmen.

One big frame was all the Colonials needed. In the opening stanza three hard hits and two lucky bounces sent them to the lead. Letty Billiecky could not be tamed. After that it was a nip and tuck affair with Norm Hebert and Charlie Neff holding the upper hand.

Glens Falls put on a late rally in the sixth when two runs were registered but they failed to get the necessary equalizer. With Hebert relieving Neff in the first the Colonials were checked completely.

Bill Luckey whiffed Charlie Husta to open the game in the Colonials' half of the first after Neff set down Glens Falls in order. But the old baseball saying "When a pitcher starts the first batter he never misses" ran true to form for Letty Luckey.

Luckey's fast ball and curves wavered when he issued successive passes to "Gooby" Benjamin and Bill Finger. Then came the crushing base knocks. Continuing from where he left off Tuesday, Mac Tiano socked a well-placed hit into deep left center for a triple scoring out Bennington and Finger. Bill Thomas followed with another three-plate smash into the same territory registering Mac. In trying to stretch the triple into a homer, Thomas was run down on a throw from Lauzan to Carman to Marzola after the runner had slipped on the third base path. With two away things looked a little brighter for Hickey until Tom Dubois blasted a long drive out into center for another three-bagger and then legged it home when Pagonis muffed the relay in Iron Ward. This was enough for Hickey. In came Norm Hebert who fanned 11 in his brilliant relief stint and began by sending Schatzel back to the bench on strikes.

Charlie Neff got himself into a hole in the second when Jim Barber and Carman walked and were then alone on Cook's mound. Neff rallied, however, and fanned Ward and then made Marzola line out to Joe Hoffman who pulled off a sensational running catch.

Glens Falls finally solved Charlie in the fourth. A walk to Cook started it but once again the Stone Ridge maestro pulled himself together. With two gone, Hebert worked Neff for the first hit off Hebert in the fourth when he tricked one down to Carman and then beat the throw to first. In the seventh Jack Schatzel, who was spiked in the second, walked a double to left but died on base.

Game Sunday The third home game of the week will be played tomorrow afternoon at the Athletic Field when Bennington makes its initial appearance. Game time is 2:15. Today Uhl will probably get the starting assignment.

Vance and Ryan, world famous midgets and quite naturally the world's smallest bowlers will accompany Joe Falcero and his All Stars to Kingston for the exhibition Sunday night against the Crystal Beauty Shoppe at the Central Recreation drives at 8:30 p. m.

The midgets are featured at Falcero's 181st street affairs from time to time. They roll duckpins and tenpins.

Much interest is centered on the five-man exhibition and a capacity crowd is expected to greet the world's undefeated match game champion and his stars.

Falcero scored a great hit in Kingston in mid-season when he showed for two successive nights. He has since been anxious to make a return appearance and, despite the lateness of the season, it is quite likely that his many rooters will turn out to greet him.

The Gotham star is credited with 49 perfect games of 300 and some of the greatest records in the book including an average of .255 for 30 consecutive games.

Chesty Joe, as he is familiarly known in bowling circles, will roll a set of singles in addition to the five-man feature. He will resume his feud with John "Sharper" Ferraro.

A nominal admission will be made for the exhibition but no seats will be reserved. The Crystal Beauty Shoppe, Gold Division champions for 1938-1939, will use their regular lineup of Hanley, Kellenberger, Tiano, Ferraro and Rice.

Dean Will Start Against the Bees

Chicago, May 20 (AP)—Ol' Dizy Dean will get the action he craves tomorrow when he makes the first start of the 1939 season. Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs said Dean would win up his $185,000 right arm against the Boston Bees. That means a crowd at Wrigley Field of some 30,000. Dean's showing may reveal whether he is worth the $20,000 Owner Philip K. Wrigley is paying him this year. If he fails he probably will slip back as a relief pitcher, continuing in that role until he pitches himself into shape, or as Dean himself says: "Out of a job."

Both Dean and Hartnett believe he'll triumph. Boston was one of the clubs he defeated last season, 3 to 1, on four hits, in chalking up seven victories. Hartnett bases his belief on the impressive showing Dean made the other day against the Dodgers. Dean, unexpectedly went to the firing line, flogged the Brooklynites down with three hits, issued no passes and fanned five in five innings.

"He looked better to me than any time since he joined the Cubs last year," Hartnett said. "That's saying a mouthful, I believe, and I hope I'm right, that Ol' Diz is ready to make that comeback."

Dean insists that his arm no longer pains him.

"I am convinced now, that I'm all set," Dean drawled. "My arm feels just like it ought. I'm tickled at the chance to fog 'em down against the Bees. I'll make good."

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

A word to the wise hasn't been sufficient to stop the New York Yankees and unless some of the other American League clubs come up soon with a different brand of ammunition, it will be too late to halt them with anything.

The World Champions now have won nine consecutive games and for all the opposition put up by most of their foes they might go on forever—a sort of perpetual motion.

No baseball club in many years has blanketed everything in sight as New York has done thus far this season. Only in club batting, where the St. Louis Browns are on top, do the Yankees look up to any one. They not only hold the lead in such subdivisions as runs batted in, etc., but also in fielding and pitching.

In 24 games they have committed only nine errors and only once have they made two in the same game.

Good Pitchers

They have six pitchers who are undefeated with records ranging from one victory up to the four of Monte Pearson and the six of Charley (The Red) Ruffing.

Ruffing's sixth was a steady seven hit performance yesterday against the Chicago White Sox. The Yankees won 4-2 by bunching three of their six hits for three runs in the eighth inning.

The second place Boston Red Sox, the only team which has shown any ability to stay within shouting distance of the Yanks, caught the St. Louis Browns while they were still suffering from the loss of an entire series at New York and walloped them 15-7.

It was the sixth successive setback for the Browns and plunked them into the American League cellar as the Philadelphia Athletics jumped on the Detroit Tigers 11-6. Although the A's shot off a lot of fireworks, the shot that really counted was a pinch double by Chubby Dean with the bases loaded in the seventh. He filled his cup to overflowing, then, by pitching shutout ball in the last two innings.

The Cleveland Indians moved into third place in the shuffle by out-fubustering the Washington Senators 8-4. Willis Hudlin was touched for a dozen hits to the nine the Indians flched, but Washington made five costly blunders including three by third baseman Buddy Lewis.

Reds in 12th

There was some important pushing and shoving in the National League standings, too, as the Cincinnati Reds nudged out the Phillies 4-3 in the 12th inning to move into a virtual tie for first place with the idle St. Louis Cardinals. The Reds overcame a three-run lead with a run in the sixth and two in the seventh and big Ernie Lombardi, last year's most valuable player, popped a homer to settle matters.

The New York Giants got gay with the Chicago Cubs in an 11-5 victory which represented more runs than they had put together in any one game this year. As a result the Cubs dropped to fourth and the Giants moved to sixth.

The Boston Bees were ready and willing to take advantage of the Cubs' demise, snapping their own three-game losing streak by beating Pittsburgh 5-2 in a late-inning display sparked by Buddy Hassett's double driving in two runs in the first.

Rain kept Brooklyn and St. Louis out of action.

Bookman, Forezzi, Williams Win at Auditorium Friday

Lots of Action as Sluggers Fight It Out—Price Reduction for Next Week's Card

Although the crowd was slim, last night's boxing show at the Municipal Auditorium was one of the best ever staged at the Broadway arena, three Diamond Belt champions tasting defeat in the bouts on the upper portion of the bill.

The champions who went down in real slugfests were Charlie "Sergeant" Perry, who put up one of the best scraps of his career; Monk Armstrong and Charlie Raigins, who lost on a technical knockout, failing to answer the bell for the fourth round.

A special announcement was made concerning the boxing show for Friday night, May 26. Prices have been reduced and ladies' night will be observed. All ladies will be admitted free.

Beginning with plenty of vigor at the opening gong, Perry and his opponent Dutch Williams slugged it out toe to toe for two rounds, the Newburgh better going down for the count of nine in the second stanza. He came back to redeem himself and staggered the Sergeant with several hard blows.

Perry absorbed a terrific beating in the third as Dutch bounced hard rights and lefts off his jaw, but kept on fighting. In the fourth he jarred Williams with his best right-hand wallop, but lacked the power to put him away. The rugged Williams had Perry reeling and groggy at the finish. Weights were Williams 170, Perry 173.

Bookman Victorious

In a sizzling semi-final, Monk Armstrong of Kingston, Diamond Belt middleweight champion, bowed to Buddy Bookman of Hurleyville, who got off the floor to win. Bookman, the southpaw who defeated Hugo Dubaldi of Newburgh three weeks ago, was knocked down twice in the second round for counts of eight, but made a strong comeback, flooring Armstrong for nine in the same frame.

For the third round, the two continued their slugfest, but slowed up in the last two heats, with Bookman doing enough punching to earn him the decision.

In better fighting trim than ever, Charlie Forezzi, Albany 131 pounder, scored a technical knockout over Charlie "Honey-boy" Raigins of Saugerties, who was unable to answer the bell for the fourth round.

Forezzi punished Raigins with terrific body blows for three rounds, and from the steady tattoo, the Saugerties wallop was unable to resume fighting for the last two heats.

Other Results

Tony Gartex, 118, of Poughkeepsie, outpointed Leo Sarnelli, 113, Albany, five rounds.

Joe Andrews, 161, Albany, decision Carl Beck, 162, Poughkeepsie, three rounds.

Jess Caprotti, 134, Kingston, stopped Dick Toric, 132, Albany, in the second round.

Babe Bunce, 120, Kingston, was given an unpopular decision over Jackie Hogan, 119, Kingston.

Ronald Francis Dugan, Kingston youth who succumbed to injuries suffered when struck by a car last Monday, was buried Friday morning in St. Mary's cemetery, following a requiem Mass offered for the repose of his soul by the Rev. John D. Simmons at St. Joseph's Church. The children sang the responses during the services with Mrs. Frank Rafferty at the organ. The church was crowded for the rites. Several classes from St. Joseph's school, where the youth was a student, were present. Scores of people visited the Dugan home on Wilbur avenue during the bereavement to offer words of consolation to the bereaved parents while many sent floral tributes and Mass cards. Among the many callers was the Rev. Father Simmons who led the Mass in the requiem of the Rosary. John De Gasperis, John Guadagnola, Everett McCordie, Robert Murray, Henry Kelly and Martin Haggerty, schoolmates of the boy, acted as casket bearers. The pastor of St. Joseph's Church, the Rev. John P. McCaffrey, led the cortege to the cemetery and pronounced the final absolution at the grave.

Financial and Commercial

Department Stores Sales Are Higher

Department stores throughout the nation last week showed sales 22 per cent above the same week in 1938, as compared with a rise of about one per cent during the first four months of this year. Comment is made that although the larger merchandisers in the next six weeks will show improvement in first half earnings over 1938, the comparison will be aided by the fact that consumer demand at retail was at the lowest ebb of the 1937-38 business recession during May and June a year ago.

President Keller of Chrysler predicts that production of cars and trucks in the United States and Canada this year will reach 3,800,000 units, a gain of 40 per cent over 1938 when production totaled 2,655,000. This is the first upward revision of estimates made by any executive since the early ones which placed the total at 3,200,000 to 3,300,000. This week output had a contra-seasonal rise to 80,145, with Ford and General Motors leading.

Liverpool spinners are reported to be suffering from an acute shortage of desirable American cotton, despite the fact that the U. S. government holds record-breaking supplies of the staple, in the form of crop loan stocks.

Anthracite coal mining contract negotiations for the fourth time have made an extension of the present contract, to May 27, as negotiators announced that they might reach a tentative agreement within a few days.

National Dairy Products is reporting a current business well above a year ago, but below the first quarter, when $1,811,000 was earned.

Transactions on the Stock Exchange held their slow pace Friday, volume being 400,000 shares, and gains were shown in all averages, with closing prices about the low for the day. Industrials, in the Dow-Jones averages, Standard 0.95 point, to 130.38; rails advanced 0.17 point, to 26.23; utilities were up 0.21 point, to 22.66. There was further selling in U. S. Steel, preferred, which went down to 98 1/2.

Holland Furnace and United Air Lines both showed net loss for the first quarter of the year. The former at $158,544 and Air Lines losing $419,083. Standard Gas and subsidiaries had net income for the quarter of $1,623,798, compared with net of $1,673,775 in the first quarter of 1938.

Mesta Machine declared 25 cents on common; paid 50 cents in each of the preceding quarters. Bay City Cigars voted 18 1/2 cents on common. Regular quarters were declared by Electric Storage Battery, 50 cents; American Simitra Tobacco, 25 cents; Quaker Oats, $1.25; Waukesha Motors, 25 cents.

American Woolen sales for the first half of the year are expected to be about double those of the first half of 1938. Inventories are reported to be low and buying of the hand-to-mouth order.

Churchill Wins

Cambridge, Eng., May 20 (AP)—Winston Churchill, veteran conservative member of Parliament, so impressed an audience of Cambridge University undergraduates in a speech last night that they voted ten to one in favor of "gladly accepting" the military training bill, which Churchill described as "a convincing answer to Nazi propaganda."

Memorial Service

A memorial service will be held at Kingston Point for deceased soldiers and sailors Sunday, May 28, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, it was announced today. Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, the Rev. William J. McVey, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and Surgeon Harry H. Flemming will be the speakers.

New York, May 20 (AP)—Buying in stocks, motors and rubbers kept the stock market on a rising plane today with favorites posting gains running to a point or so.

There was little pickup in the trading pace, however, and transfers for the two-hour proceedings were only around 200,000 shares. Recently inconsequential weekend dealings, coupled with balmy weather, tended to keep many commission house customers away from the financial district. In addition, those traders who appeared inclined to keep commitments light pending President Roosevelt's speech before the American Retail Federation Monday in which, it was expected, he might clarify the attitude of the administration toward legislation desired by industry.

A few comforting items in the business news helped speculative sentiment, although doubters of any nearby substantial recovery hoped Congress would approve some form of tax revision, continued to keep potential share sellers timid. European developments commanded small attention in boardrooms.

Prominent shares on the extension or to advance were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Common and Preferred, Goodyear, Air Reduction, American Telephone, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Santa Fe, du Pont and J. I. Case. Bonds and commodities were narrow either way. Securities in Amsterdam, the only important foreign market open today, pointed higher.

Kurdt Gets Book On World's Fair

A copy of "Pictorial Souvenirs" of New York State Exhibits at the World's Fair, just received by Albert Kurdt, shows a most attractive and valuable booklet of 96 pages in addition to the cover, which is in colors.

The front of the cover shows the New York state building and amphitheatre and on the back is the arms of the state of New York. The pages are filled with well printed illustrations covering scenes, industries and points of interest throughout the state.

Ulster county and adjacent Region 3 territory is well represented in the list of illustrations. Among views noted are: Sturgeon Pool hydro-electric plant, West Point memorial monument, Highland Winery, Bear Mountain bridge, Neversink river waterfall, Jones Island, John Burroughs, old Senate House, Newburgh from the air, Sam's Point, Beaverkill bridge at Cook's Fall, old covered bridge, Livingston Manor view, looking up the Delaware river at the Hawk's Nest near Port Jervis, skiing scene in Ulster county.

The picture of Sam's Point shows a view of the Waikiki valley, which probably is allowable if by Sam's Point is meant the Shawangunk Mountain, a hill which does not precisely agree with the tradition that it was off the cliff on the Rondout Valley side that old Samuel Gunsalus leaped when pursued by Indians, landing safely in the top of a forest tree below.

Mr. Kurdt notes that the above souvenir booklet is not the Region 3 book, which is to be issued shortly and which will feature the history, scenery and activities of the counties comprising that region, of which Ulster county is one.

44th Birthday Of King George

Ottawa, May 20 (AP)—Two regiments of Canadian Guards today performed the time-honored ceremony of trooping the colors as Canada joined King George VI in celebrating his 44th birthday.

The king was born December 14, 1895, but adopted May 20 for the Canadian celebration of his birth.

A bright sun brought out colorful crowds that thronged the Dominion's spired capital for the most brilliant pageantry the king and his Scottish queen will see on their month's tour of Canada and the United States.

The king was driven in an automobile from Rideau Hill with an escort of mounted Royal Canadian Dragoons.

He was alone. Queen Elizabeth preceded him to the vast green square in an automobile with Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of the governor-general, and watched from a window of his chambers in the parliament building.

Trooping the colors, a ceremony whose origins lie deep in English antiquity, was carried out by the governor-general's footguards of Ottawa and the Canadian Grenadier Guards of Montreal.

There were at least 60,000 persons in the milling crowds, the largest ever to assemble on the hill.

Legion Purchases Weapons Are Best Supply of Poppies Arguments, States Minister Goebbels

One new member was admitted to the membership of Kingston Post of the American Legion at the regular monthly meeting Friday evening in the Legion building on West O'Reilly street. The new member is Comrade Keyser, formerly of Denver, Colorado Post, one of the largest Posts in the country.
Past Commander C. J. Heiselman, chairman of the committee for the state commander's dinner reported that a large attendance was expected at the dinner, and urged that reservations be made as quickly as possible.
Past Commander Harry Kirchner, chairman of the Poppy Day committee, reported that the Post had purchased 6,000 poppies and asked the cooperation of the members in disposing of them, as the Post will have to pay for the number ordered, regardless of the number sold.
Commander and Mrs. Joseph E. Sills were delegated by the Post to attend the dinner to be tendered Judge Joseph M. Fowler at the Governor Clinton Hotel in honor of his long service in Ulster county in the interests of combating tuberculosis.
Election of delegates to represent the Post at the county meetings will be held in June. Commander Sills appointed Lester C. Elmendorf, Andrew Murphy, and Comrades Paulson, Peyer, Singer and Fredenburg as a nominating committee to name candidates for the various offices of the Post and to report at the June meeting. Officers will be elected at the July meeting.

June Brides Are Favoring Diaphanous Gowns

By ADELAIDE KERR
Fashion Editor

June brides are going to march to the altar in airy diaphanous gowns. Some of New York's smartest spring brides have swept down flower-banked aisles in gowns of net, marquisette or tulle, and similar dresses will be seen from Maine to California when the month of summer weddings begins its bridal pageantry.

In spite of the vogue for airy gowns, however, the classic satin is second favorite. One of the most beautiful shown this season is a princess gown of ivory satin with bodice insets of cream Alençon lace, which is repeated at the pointed finish of its long slim sleeves. Other gowns of similar lines are designed of cream lace.

But the frothy gowns capture the fancy of most young brides. One full skirted white mousseline de soie gown is designed with a wide collar, pleated front and long sleeves edged with shirred Valenciennes lace—a dress to make any man catch his breath.

Others of net have puffed sleeves, neat little waists and full flaring skirts. There are also some youthful organdies.

The trains are virtually always part of the skirts of the gowns, which measure from three to four yards from shoulder to train tip. There's a rule, about the length of these trains, say the experts who outfit thousands of Manhattan's brides:

"Big church, long train; small church, brief train."

Tulle or sheer net makes most of the veils. The shorter waist or hip length is preferred by many young brides, though the full train length is seen at many fashionable church weddings. They swing from coronets or net, satin or leaves, from youthful lace or tulle bonnets or from various orange blossom arrangements.

White is still the favorite bridal gown color, though blush pink is chosen by a number of brides.

Designers have given special thought this year to brides who want to be married without the ceremony.

Among the smartest gowns designed for them are crepes (mauve, hyacinth blue, dusty rose and beige) designed with short or five-length sleeves, and simple floor-length skirts.

Very simple weddings where a street-length frock is required are provided for with crepe frock and redingote ensembles or combinations of a chiffon frock and fitted silk coat in soft blue, navy blue or gray. Experts settle the skirt-length question with this advice: Floor-length skirts for an afternoon or evening wedding at home in the presence of a few or many guests; street-length skirts for a simple ceremony at the minister's home or at the church in the presence of only one or two witnesses—or even for a house wedding when the bride is leaving immediately after the ceremony.

A new filling for Graham bread sandwiches is made by mixing one-fourth of a cup of strained honey with three tablespoons of peanut butter and two tablespoons of chopped raisins. This makes enough for two large sandwiches for the youngster's school lunch box. For afternoon tea use the

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Feature Service Writer

June brides soon will be thinking, perhaps worrying, too, about their first entertaining in their new home.

Perhaps the best inaugural for the new housewife's social program would be a tea for some of her best friends. A tea doesn't require elaborate preparations and doesn't tax the bride's culinary skill. Yet it does call into play her skill as a hostess.

Guests should be invited at a specific hour; plans should be worked out carefully in advance. Don't attempt to serve any new foods; choose from your repertoire of tested receipts.

The tea itself should not be prepared until the last minute. Black tea is a general favorite. Here's a way to make enough to serve four or five cups: Put three teaspoons of tea into a pot that has been rinsed with boiling water. Then pour five cups of boiling water on the tea, cover the pot and let it steep three minutes in a warm place. Then strain it into a hot serving pot. Be sure to have a pitcher of plain boiling water on the serving table, too, so that your guests can regulate the strength of the tea to their own tastes.

On the table near the teapot you should have a bowl of half-loaves of sugar; a dish of thin slices of lemon and orange, each slice with a couple of cloves speared into it; and a pitcher of cream. Sprigs of fresh mint are a refreshing addition, too, if you can get them.

For refreshments? Sandwiches, no doubt. Dainty sandwiches, short of crusts. Make them up ahead of time, wrap them in damp cloths and keep them in the refrigerator.

Here are some things to remember when making sandwiches: Always use a silver knife for spreading butter and fillings; spread the butter on first—that will keep damp fillings from soaking into the bread; soften the butter with a fork—never melt it; to keep your sandwiches neatly uniform in shape and size, pile them three high, then remove all the crusts and cut them into shapes at the same time. Chilled sandwich fillings spread easiest.

Plain buttered bread always is good with tea. You can have dishes of marmalade or jams handy for your guests to pick from for spreads. It's also nice to have stacks of hot, buttered toast on the table; damson plum butter is delicious on toast.

A mold of white cream cheese in a circle of ruby red currant jam looks pretty on the table and will make an excellent spread for your toast or for biscuits, if you serve them.

Now you're all set, except for some dainty to top off with. A dish of salted nuts, of candied fruit strings, preserved ginger or chocolate peppermints fits in here. For a more ambitious little drop cake or fingers of angel food or sponge cake. And date squares or some tempting refrigerator cookies will always be welcome.

THAT CUP OF COFFEE CAN TAKE MANY SHAPES

Here is some advice about coffee that brides—and other housewives—may find handy:

Breakfast Coffee—You'll have your own favorite method of making your coffee brew; always use enough coffee (one heaping tablespoon to each cup of water is the standard proportion); make it fresh every time and carefully keep your coffee-making equipment clean.

Viennese Coffee—Make coffee as you usually do, but top each cup with a floating island of unsweetened whipped cream.

Cafe Au Lait—Make double strength coffee for this favorite beverage, and an equal amount of hot milk. Pour freshly-made coffee and hot milk into cups at the same time, twin pots for coffee and milk as shown in the illustration are attractive.

Demi-Tasse—After dinner coffee, or demi-tasse, is also made double-strength and served usually without cream or sugar in small cups.

Know How to Soothe Your Frayed Nerves

Turn "Aches" into Vitality

Poor Mary suffers tortures with her nerves, but Bob's sure it's all her imagination.

Wrong, Bob. Headaches and pains, her fatigue are as real as the chair she's sitting on.

A shame, too, for nerves given the proper care can be a woman's greatest source of charm, energy. But so often—modern living being as hectic as it is—nerves are driven to the breaking point.

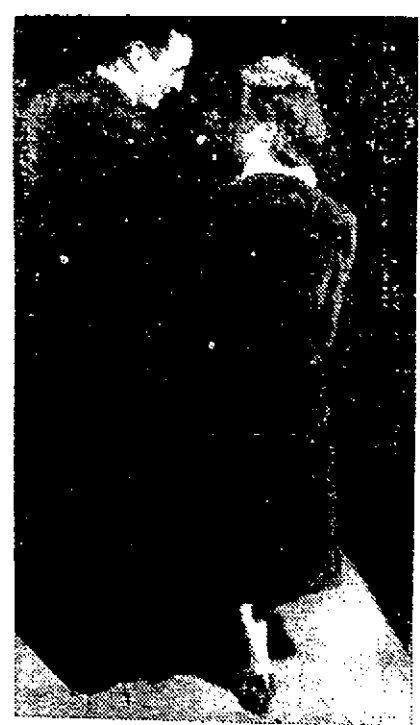

Learn to let up in your work, say the psychologists. Dawdle a bit at lunch, break your afternoon for tea—in English fashion. And in play, too, take it easy. Don't tear strenuously into games or exercise, so often the case with the high-strung. Stroll, don't hurry, when you walk.

Worry? Another enemy to nerves. Redirect the energy you pour into useless fretting. Have an outside interest, join a club. And such an interest is a fine antidote, too, for days filled with petty details, annoyances.

Exchange nervous aches and jitters for a healthful vivacity. In our 32-page booklet a well-known physician explains nervous disorders, what to do about them. Gives proper diet and body care, advice on insomnia, irritability, nervous indigestion.

HERE COMES THE BRIDE: Tips For Daytime Weddings

HERE'S THE LATEST in bridegroom's outfits (left), approved by Raymond G. Twycroft, men's fashion authority. Blue braided cutaway, blue felt top hat, blue and gray tie, striped trousers, double-breasted white waistcoat, wing collar, grey mocha gloves, black shoes. Spats not necessary in summer. (Above) A woman guest takes an usher's arm. He makes a bit of polite conversation.

THE MAID OF HONOR looks after the bride. She helps her dress, arranges her veil. She marches down the aisle eight paces in front of the bride, who is on her father's right arm. She stands at the bride's left, holds the bridal bouquet. After the ceremony she arranges the dress and train so the bride can leave without stumbling.

GUARDING THE WEDDING RING is the chief duty of the best man. During the ceremony he stands at bridegroom's right, takes the ring from his left waistcoat pocket and hands it to the clergyman, who gives it to the bridegroom to place on the third finger of the bride's left hand. He usually gives the clergyman the fee, provided by the bridegroom. (All church expenses are paid by the bride's family.) Afterwards he helps with the luggage.

MOST BRIDES today do not wear gloves during the ceremony. If the bride wears gloves, however, she slips the wedding finger of the glove so the ring may be slipped on easily. She wears her engagement ring on her right hand—or leaves it off during the wedding. When she turns to march off she takes her husband's right arm, takes her wedding bouquet from her maid of honor and transfers it to her own right arm. Her mother should be seated in the first row of pews in the left section, facing the altar. After her father takes her to the altar she stands a little to the rear until he gives her in marriage. Then he joins his wife. The bridegroom's family occupies the front pews on the right-hand side of the church.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters
 Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.
 Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate, Seaciff.

Yesterday: Grump crashes a party for Nola. Tally takes him away. Then Betty butts in.

Chapter 11

Nola and Tally

BETSY, with native dignity, her chubby fingers clutching Tex, went straight toward Bob. "Oh, Mister Bob," she trembled into the sudden silence, "can I please have some ice-cream?"

Stooping, he unfurled her fingers from the cat's fur, then picked her up. "No ice-cream," he pronounced. "Back to bed for you, young lady!"

Her cherub face puckered with dismay. "Please, Mister Bob?"

"Isn't she the cutest thing!" Mary Adams exclaimed. "Who is she, Bob?"

"Old Talbot's grandchild."

"Oh, let her have something to eat," Mary urged. "Want a sandwich, honey?"

Betsy nodded tearfully. "Minx," Bob laughed and carried her into the dining room.

So once more that evening one of the Mack family became the center of attraction at Jocelyn's party.

"I think I shall have to choose between hysterics or isolation," Jocelyn informed Geoff, dropping into a chair.

At that precise moment Tex observed his benefactor. Memories of delicious salmon erased his annoyance at being peremptorily introduced into a room full of strange people. Jocelyn was not strange and, although Tex did not care particularly for women, she deserved consideration because she allowed him bed and unusual board. And so, without more ado, he sprang into his lair and rubbed his big furry head under her chin.

Geoff stared. He started to reach for the cat. "Here, Lyn, I'll put the beast outdoors."

Jocelyn smothered a giggle, wondering what Geoff's reaction would be if Tex scratched him. At least this was not the time and place to find out.

"Never mind," she said sharply. "He's dangerous, Geoff. He might bite you."

Geoff drew back. "Then why does he like you?" he demanded suspiciously.

"I haven't the slightest notion," she fibbed, "but I'll put him outside."

Just as she reached the door with Tex, Tally and Nola came in. "We're looking for Betty," Nola smiled. "Oh, there she is, Tally."

And another Mack was gently but firmly removed from the party and taken to bed.

Geoff said: "Lyn, I've had enough of this, haven't you? Let's collect the crowd and take them in to my place for an hour or so."

"You manage it, Geoff. I—I'm not very responsible right now."

With renewed enthusiasm everyone piled into cars and started for town. Geoffrey and Jocelyn arrived far enough ahead of the others to open the house, turn on the lights and the radio.

Stark Jealousy

THE Kensing house was Colonial style, tastefully furnished. Geoffrey lived here with his mother, who, right now, was summing up at Arrowhead. So, relieved, she had confided to Jocelyn, to be able to use the summer heat as an excuse to open her mountain place and get away from polo and polo ponies. Jocelyn liked Mrs. Kensing. She was a tolerant person with a keen sense of humor.

The concentrated blasts of many horns announced the arrival of the guests. Jocelyn declared, "I must powder my nose!" and left Geoff to welcome the crowd. Descending about ten minutes later she stopped at a turn in the driveway to look over the heads below and see if everyone had come. Bob, Mary, Ruth, Jim, Eleanor . . . where was Nola?

Discreetly questioning her and there, she discovered no one had seen Nola and no one had brought her. Thorn had been around a few minutes before, she ascertained. An intuitive twinge warned her. Abruptly, she was positive of Nola's whereabouts. Nola had taken advantage of the rush and stayed behind at Seaciff with Tally.

"I must be blind," Lyn thought dully. "Nola is in love with Tally. Thorn . . . Thorn mustn't be hurt . . . he mustn't know. I won't let her hurt him this way. I'm going to Seaciff and drag her here if I have to! For Thorn's sake . . ."

Slipping unobserved through the conservatory and thence through a side entrance, she found Geoff's car, slid under the wheel and eased it as quietly as possible down the driveway and into the street.

Once on the highway she stepped on the accelerator and covered the three miles to Seaciff in almost as many minutes. But when she pulled in before the four-car garage she saw Thorn's sedan and realized that he, too, had missed Nola and returned.

Thorn, driving to Seaciff, knew stark, unreasoning jealousy. He possessed him to the extent where he scarcely could coordinate his thoughts enough to handle the car. When Nola had insisted on his taking two other couples in his car and letting her follow with Bob, he should have known something was in the wind. He supposed he should have known weeks ago.

His laugh, caught up by the night breeze, was harsh and mirthless. Nola, running over on the other side of the fence day and night; Nola, wearing simple clothes; Nola, making a fuss over a disgusting old man and a smugly-faced child. It all added up to one conclusion!

Nola fancied herself in love with young Talbot Mack. Having money, she had no respect for it. This was, without doubt, the first time in her life she had come into contact with poverty. Sympathy had blinded her to all sense of proportion. This Mack fellow was a handsome brute—oh, he would admit that—but still a boorish fellow with no background and no money, no finer instincts. Certainly not the type who could ever make a girl like Nola happy.

It was up to him to save Nola from herself. Save her from making a mess of her life. He could forgive her her foolishness because he comprehended how her sympathies had been worked upon. Yet he would not forgive her too easily. He would be firm.

So deciding, calming himself a little, he swerved into the driveway and halted before the garage. He stepped out of the car and looked around. Then he heard voices from the direction of the swimming pool. Approaching across the thick carpet of grass, he surprised Nola and Tally coming out of the pool, laughing as if they thoroughly enjoyed this mad capering under the summer moon.

"Get Away—Slay Away!"

"NOLA!" he called. "What are you doing here?"

"Swimming," she returned. "The water is marvelous, darling, and I was so tired of being nice to people."

Her casualness incensed him. "Nola," he ordered, "be kind enough to dress at once and come with me. People are no doubt talking already."

"Don't be absurd," she chided, an edge to her voice. "I am not at all concerned. I don't care whether people whisper, talk, sing, or shout about me! I wanted to swim. I wanted to talk to Tally. I'm having a good time and I have no intention of leaving if you want to join us—fine; if you don't—" She shrugged.

"Aren't you forgetting we're engaged?" he demanded.

"So what?" Nola drawled, hands resting lightly on her hips. "If you imagine for one moment that you are ever going to own me, you're wrong. Thorn Russell, just get it out of your head!"

Tally approached the verbal combatants. "I'm sorry, if I've caused any trouble, Nola," he said, then turned to Thorn. "Your guests made so much noise I was unable to sleep. Miss Cranston very kindly invited me to swim with her. I certainly have no wish to cause a misunderstanding between you two."

"You've never caused me anything but trouble," Thorn snapped. "Besides, you don't belong here. You have no right here. Get away from this pool and stay away from it . . . and stay on your own side of the grounds!"

Tally's mouth set in a grim line. "I have never trespassed without invitation, Mr. Russell. I was invited here and I have no intention of leaving. I never could stand that sour face of yours, anyhow!"

"How dare you talk that way to me!" Thorn raged, his neat mustache quivering, his pale eyes distended. He started toward Tally, walking gingerly on the wet tiled edge of the pool. "You upstart! You—you put me in a bad mood!"

Tally tipped out his arm, caught Thorn's shoulder and shoved him backward into the pool. "This should cool him off," he observed to Nola.

Jocelyn ran up just in time to see her brother charging and spluttering and fuming, floundering in the ladder. She reached for his hand and helped him out of the water.

Tally had not moved. His bold eyes challenged Thorn to further insult. Nola was doubled over, shrieking with helpless laughter. "I—I never saw anything so funny in all my life," she finally gasped. "You—you're so dignified, Thorn darling!"

Thorn, his teeth chattering, said, "I see nothing humorous in being pushed into my own swimming pool by a savage moron!"

If he hoped to squelch Nola he failed. His words merely sent her off into another gale of laughter. "Shut up!" he finally howled, abandoning all effort at control. "Shut up and get out of my sight—both of you!"

Continued Monday.

Colonials Nip Glens Falls 4-3; Diamond Belt Champions Lose

Rally in First Inning Nets Four Runs for Locals

Charlie Neff Gives Only Four Hits — Bennington Club Here on Sunday Afternoon

In last night's New York State League the Kingston Colonials edged out Glens Falls, pushing across four runs, all of them in the opening inning. Charlie Neff hurled for the locals and gave up but four hits and made his entrance a memorable one by striking out 10 batsmen.

One big frame was all the Colonials needed. In the opening stanza three hard hits and two walks produced four runs before Letty Hickey could retire the side. After that it was a nip and tuck affair with Norm Hebert and Charlie Neff holding the upper hand.

Glens Falls put on a late rally in the sixth when two runs were registered but they failed to get the necessary equalizer. With Hebert relieving Hickey in the first the Colonials were checked completely.

Letty Hickey whiffed Charlie Husta to open the game in the Colonials' half of the first after Neff set down Glens Falls in order. But the old pitcher saying "When a pitcher takes the first batter he never wishes" ran true to form for Letty Hickey. Hickey's fast ball and curves wavered when he issued successive passes to "Gooby" Benjamin and Bill Finger. Then came the crushing base knocks.

Continuing from where he left off Tuesday, Mac Tiano socked a well-placed hit into deep left center for a triple scoring both Benjamin and Finger. Bill Thomas followed with another three-plate smash into the same territory registering Mac. In trying to stretch the triple into a homer, Thomas was run down on a throw from Lauzan to Carman to Marzola after the runner had slipped on the third base path. With two away things looked a little brighter for Hickey until Tom DuBois blasted a long drive into center for another three-bagger and then legged it home when Pagonis snuffed the relay in from Ward.

It was enough for Hickey. In came Norm Hebert who lanned 11 in his brilliant debut and began by sending Schatzel back to the bench on strikes.

Charlie Neff got himself into a hole in the second when Jun Barber and Carman walked and were moved along on Cook's bunt. Neff rallied, however, and fanned Ward and then made Marzola line out to Joe Hoffman who pulled out a sensational running catch.

Glens Falls finally solved Charlie Neff's fourth. A walk to Cook started it, but once again the Stone Ridge major pulled himself together. With two gone, Hebert worked Neff for a base and then Pagonis bluffed a looping bingle into right accounting for Cook. Then in the sixth Cook opened it again with his club's third sally by singling to center. Ward's bouncer to ringer erased Cook but the batter reached first on a holder's choice when he beat Hoffman's relay to Schatzel. Ken Marzola caught onto one of Neff's curves and slammed it into center scoring Ward. Then when Mac Tiano failed to field the pill properly, Marzola scampered all around the sacks to score the third chucker.

While Glens Falls' aggression was solving Neff in the two frames Norm Hebert was setting down the Colonials in fine style. Tom DuBois cracked out the first hit off Hebert in the fourth when he trickled one down to Carman and then beat the throw to first. In the seventh Jack Schatzel, who was spiked in the second, walked a double to left but died on base.

Game Sunday

The third home game of the week will be played tomorrow afternoon at the Athletic Field when Bennington makes its initial appearance. Game time is 2:15. Today Uni will probably get the starting assignment.

Speedway Trials At Indianapolis

Indianapolis, May 20 (AP)—Twenty-two cars and 51 regular and relief drivers lined up at the Indianapolis motor speedway today to compete against time for the 33 starting places in the 27th annual 500-mile race on Memorial Day.

Qualifying trials were scheduled for nine hours (10 a. m. to 7 p. m., CST) today and again tomorrow and next week. Veterans in the racing business predicted they would produce the fastest driving the speedway has seen, upward of 130 miles an hour.

In all, 49 automobiles have been entered. Others may try to qualify later. To be eligible for the race, a car must be 10 miles—four times around the two-and-a-half-mile brick-and-asphalt track—at an average speed of 110 miles an hour. Each is allowed three tryouts.

Men's Club Holds Night for Ladies

Following their custom the Men's Club of the First Reformed Church closed their current season's activities Friday night by observing ladies night and there was a good attendance at the entertainment and social hour held in the chapel of the church.

President Dr. Charles L. Palmer, presided at the short business meeting and I. Stuart Williams had charge of the program which followed.

Pictures depicting scenes along the Lincoln Highway were shown, with explanatory lecture by B. C. Van Ingen, superintendent of schools. It was noted that this highway, 3,611 miles long extending from New York to San Francisco, had its inception in the brain of Carl F. Fischei, who back in 1912 had a vision of a transcontinental highway linking the Atlantic and the Pacific.

A vocal and instrumental program was given by Mrs. Benjamin W. Johnston, who, accompanied by W. Whiting Frederburgh, was heard in several solos and Harry V. Ten Haggen for a term of years organist at Rosendale who entertained with three piano numbers the fifth sonata by Liszt, a nocturne and a valse number.

Mrs. Johnston gave for one of her selections "Over the Diamond Sea" the melody of which was written by Ralph K. Forsyth some years ago, with arrangement and accompaniment by Mr. Frederburgh.

A service of refreshments concluded the evening.

At the 8:30 o'clock Mass in Holy Name Church in Wilbur to follow the following ten children will make their First Holy Communion: John Ahl, Gerard Dietz, Edward Dougherty, Henry Wenzel, Georgia Belmont, Joan Cea, Elsie Hamma, Frances Letus, Maurice Lynch, Josephine Smith. Because of the First Communion ceremony, Mass in Fiddesville will not begin until 10:15 o'clock.

A large audience of friends and parents as well as the students of Kingston High School and the Myron J. Michael School attended the annual May Day festivities in the large natural amphitheatre in the rear of the school yesterday. Presiding over the program in which over 250 students took part was Queen of the May, June Crandall and her court. On the platform are left to right: Senior president William Cole, Queen June Crandall and Agnes Cafaro, maid of honor. The attendants are in the same order, June Houst, Marion DuBois, Gwendolyn Ketchum, Marjorie Delaney, Virginia Luedtke and Frances Dobie. Seated on the step directly behind the senior banner are Joan Crosby, Richard Petto and Jane Crosby. The letter men holding the banner are Andrew Murphy left, and Irving Rose. In the bottom photo a group of girls from the eighth grade in the Myron J. Michael school dance around the May pole. A small portion of the crowd may be seen in the background on the hill.

Legion Purchases Supply of Poppies

One new member was admitted to the membership of Kingston Post of the American Legion at the regular monthly meeting Friday evening in the Legion building on West O'Reilly street. The new member is Comrade Keyser, formerly of Denver, Colorado Post, one of the largest Posts in the country.

Past Commander C. J. Heiselman, chairman of the committee for the state commander's dinner reported that a large attendance was expected at the dinner, and urged that reservations be made as quickly as possible.

Past Commander Harry Kirchner, chairman of the Poppy Day committee, reported that the Post had purchased 6,000 poppies and asked the cooperation of the members in disposing of them as the Post will have to pay for the number ordered, regardless of the number sold.

Commander and Mrs. Joseph E. Sills were delegated by the Post to attend the dinner to be tendered Judge Joseph M. Fowler at the Governor Clinton Hotel in honor of his long service in Ulster county in the interests of combating tuberculosis.

Election of delegates to represent the Post at the county meetings will be held in June. Commander Sills appointed Lester C. Elmendorf, Andrew Murphy and Comrades Paulson, Peyer, Singer and Fredenburg as a nominating committee to name candidates for the various offices of the Post and to report at the June meeting. Officers will be elected at the July meeting.

Took Too Much
Folsom, Calif., May 20 (AP)—Robert Louis Granless, 30, guard at Folsom prison farm, liked to show prisoners how much electricity he could "take." Convicted about him yesterday for another demonstration. Suddenly he fell dead. He stood the shock until he stepped into wet dirt reported R. H. Taylor, secretary to Warden C. L. Plumber.

To Hold Social
There will be a social gathering of families at the church hall on Thursday evening, May 25, at Flatbush. At this time the ladies will tell how they earned their dollar. Refreshments will be free.
